HICKS LEADS RED DRIVE IN HARVARD

STORY ON PAGE 2

Harvard Red—Priming Communistic pump last night was Harvard tutor, Granville Hicks, at undergraduate Red rally. Talk brought down wrath of patriotic organizations upon him and college.

HICKS' HARVARD RED DRIVE RAPPED

Dramatic reappearance of Harvard's radical-minded young history tutor, Granville Hicks, as an open and vigorous campaigner for Communism brought a new storm of public criticism upon him and upon Harvard authorities today.

Allegedly violating his own direct promise never to use his Harvard position to further his political beliefs, Hicks was a principal speaker last night at a Communist meeting, almost within the shadow of Harvard's ivy-clad walls.

After addressing the gathering, attended by 450 Harvard students with admitted Communist sympathies or affiliations, Hicks assisted in taking up a collection for financial support of "The New Masses," leading U. S. Communist weekly.

YETS IN PROTEST

At the same time, announcement was impressively made that Hicks would take a star role as Communist leader Earl Browder's fellow orator at a National Communist Party rally in Boston Arena, November 6.

Public reaction to Hick's Communist campaigning while holding his Harvard post was promptly manifest today, as high officials and spokesmen for patriotic, veteran and civic groups voiced scathing comment.

Congressman John W. McCormack, of South oBston, chairman of a former congressional committee investigating un-American activities, said:

"The sooner Harvard gets rid of Hicks and his indoctrination of students with his pernicious Communist propaganda, the better for Harvard."

John F. Malley, Massachusetts director for the Federal Housing Administration and former national head of the Elks, said:

"By taking improper advantage of prestige he has obtained through his connection with Harvard, Hicks has proved himself a menace to the youth of America."

State Representative Francis X. Coyne said:

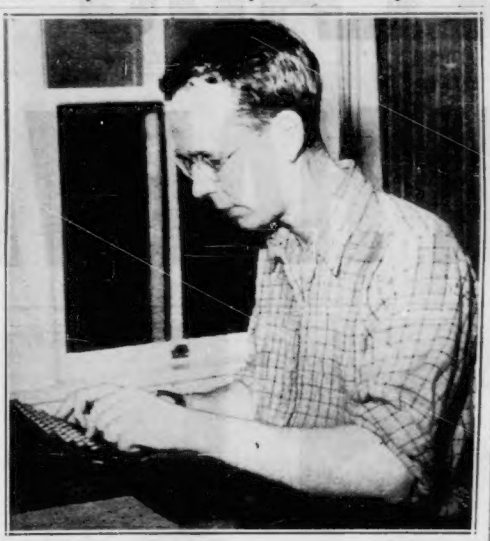

"Hicks stamped himself an enemy to our democratic form of government by associating himself with last night's Red gathering at Cantabrigia Hall, Cambridge.

"It is the duty of Harvard college to call for Hicks resignation and, if it is not forthcoming, to remove him at once. He is a blot on Harvard's good name."

In his own defense, Tutor Hicks said:

"What I d oon my own free time can in no way influence my work in an advisory capacity

Bluenose Off To Early Lead

ABOARD SCHOONER GERTRUDE L. THEBAUD OFF GLOUCESTER, Oct. 13 (AP)—Captain Angus Walters' big Canadian saltbanker Bluenose, defender of the international fishermen's trophy, today led the challenger, Captain Ben Pine's Gertrude L. Thebaud, of Gloucester, by 39 seconds at the end of the first five miles as they attempted to sail the second race in the three-out-of-five title series.

The vessels got away at 11:50 a. m., and their times at the five-mile mark were: Bluenose, 12:24:-55 p. m.; Thebaud, 12:25:34.

The opening five miles, referred to as the "tail" of a triangle, carried the schooners in an east by north direction. Then they began the triangular part of the course with a 10-mile beat to windward in a north by westerly direction.

The huge white sails of the fishermen glistened in a warm sun, and both skippers hope for an increase in the eight-mile-an-hour velocity of the southwest breeze.

An hour after the start Bluenose, in the weather position, held a lead of approximately an eighth of a mile. The wind remained light, scarcely 10 miles an hour—flying fish weather.

At 12:55 p. m. Thebaud went out on a starboard tack, and Bluenose quickly followed to keep the challenger covered.

McGlue Contact Urged by Graves, Witness Reveals

The name of Charles McGlue, onetime State Democratic chairman, former head of the state ballot law commission and former campaign manager for James M. Curley, today was injected into the trial of Frederick W. Graves.

Graves is on trial before Judge Harold Williams in Suffolk criminal court on charges of perjury in connection with his testimony against former Governor Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso in the city's suit to recover $40,000 which he said he paid them to obtain the settlement of a water-damage suit.

"Graves said McGlue had been making a special study of the case, that it would take someone fully acquainted with the old decisions and cases, that it would be very much to our advantage if we gave consideration to the case under the direction of McGlue," William J. Montgomery, of the New York firm of Ernest W. Brown, Inc., Graves' employers at that time, stated on the witness stand.

WANTED M'GLUE AID

This, Montgomery testified, was back in December, 1931. He explained that Ernest W. Brown, Inc., had bought the water-damage claim against the city for $70,000.

"Graves told me he had taken the matter up with a friend," Montgomery stated.

"Did he name the friend?" Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle asked.

"Yes," Montgomery testified. "Mr. Charles McGlue."

Montgomery was called to the stand upon completion of testimony by Attorney Stuart Rand, counsel for the Boston Herald-Traveler Corporation.

Rand testified last week that he sought out Graves after former Mayor Curley filed suit against the Herald-Traveler for $500,000 because of articles the Herald-Traveler had printed about him and the water-damage settlement.

Today he added that he obtained an affidavit from Graves and agreed to pay him for his "lost time and expenses," and that he also hired Graves to do some "investigating" in connection with the case.

TELLS OF JAIL TALK

This investigating, it was brought out, included a trip by Graves to Washington to check up there on hotel registration cards supposed to evidence his and then-Mayor Curley's presence in the capital at the time Graves has said the alleged $40,000 "deal" was made.

Rand also said he has talked with Graves since Graves was incarcerated in the Charles Street Jail awaiting trial on the present perjury charge. He testified to this under cross-examination by

Find Young Bride Dead In Saugus

A blonde bride of a month died alone today in the gas-filled kitchen of her Saugus home, victim of a tragic accident.

Mrs. Irene Donovan, 27, of Walnut street, Saugus, was pronounced dead by Associate Medical Examiner Lawrence F. Cusick after firemen had worked over her an hour in a vain effort to revive her.

According to circumstances reconstructed by police from the simple evidene of a book lying open on the living room ruf, the girl's prone body on the kithen floor, and two open gas jets in the stove, Mrs. Donovan had been reading just before her death.

Smelling the gas from the stove, she had arisen to trace the fumes, police said, and had almost reached the stove when she was overcome.

Her brother, Charles Donovan, Saugus florist, found her there sometime late rand called the fire department.

Her husband Joseph was away at the time of the tragedy and did not learn of it until some time later.

Dr. Cusick said over the unlighted but open gas jets in the kitchen was a pot of peas, and that the window in the room had been open.

"In my opinion, a gust of wind blew out the gas," Dr. Cusick said, 'and before Mrs. Donovan recognized her danger the gas had overcome her."

'HELLO, JOHNNY, THIS IS SHIRLEY!'

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (INS)—The telephone rang in a room at Mercy Hospital.

"It's for you," said the nurse, handing the receiver to Johnny English, 14; "a long-distance call from Hollywood."

A girl's voice said:

"Hello, Johnny! This is Shirley."

"Who?" said Johnny.

"Me, Shirley Temple."

Johnny's mouth dropped open. Then he looked at the nurse suspiciously.

"It's not a joke," she said. "It really is Shirley."

Johnny could hear the girl demanding imperatively:

"Hello, hello there."

"Hello," said Johnny.

"I hear you've been in the hospital," said Shirley.

"Yeah," Johnny stuttered, "I've been here about eight days. I've been sick quite a while."

Johnny has been very sick. The doctors said he would die a month ago, and that only the Cubs' drive for a pennant kept him alive. He was thrilled by a visit from two Cub players, but suffered a relapse when Chicago lost the World Series.

"Did you get my picture?" asked Shirley.

Johnny looked up to reassure himself it still was on the dresser.

"You bet," he said.

There was an embarrassed pause.

"I haven't had my dinner yet," said Shirley. "Have you had yours? Gee, I'm hungry."

Johnny didn't take the hint.

"Yeah," he said. "I had my dinner. I had my X-ray, too. I get X-rays every night. They're not bad."

There was another lapse in the conversation.

"I'm making a new movie," Shirley remarked.

"What's its name?" asked Johnny.

"The Little Princess."

"Gee," said Johnny.

"Hurry up and get well so you can see it," urged Shirley.

"Yeah," said Johnny and they hung up.

The doctors say he never will see that picture or any other. He is afflicted with a rare and incurable form of cancer.

Ousted Medfield Teacher to Fight

MEDFIELD, Oct. 13—Miss Christina Alach, 23, ousted Medfield school teacher, struck back at the Medfield school committee today with threatened legal action.

Ousted last night by the school committee "for participation in an alleged demonstration in front of the British consulate in Boston," Miss Alach was in Boston today with the avowed purpose of consulting an attorney.

"I'm not a Communist," she declared. "If it was a Communist demonstration, I didn't know it. It was just a demonstration against Chamberlain's policy with regard to Czechoslovakia. I was just an onlooker."

Miss Alach's father, Fred Alach, restaurant and boarding house owner in Framingham, was indignant today.

FATHER MAPS FIGHT

"I'm Ukrainian born," he admitted. "But," he added forcefully, "I'm an American, and my daughter's American. We're not Communists.

Alach added, darkly—

"There's more behind this than appears on the surface. I think someone wanted to 'get' her job. Well, she's going to fight, and I'm backing her."

Miss Alach has been teaching the fifth grade in the Ralph Wheelock school.

The school board revealed that residents of the town protested when they saw a newspaper picture of Miss Alach participating in the demonstration October 1. The picketing broke up when police ordered them to disband.

After voting her dismissal, the school board released the following statment:

"The Medfield school committee believe that since Miss Christina Alach has acknowledged taking active part in a public and illegal demonstration against the acts of another government, she has thereby terminated her usefulness as a teacher in the public schools of Medfield.

"It is therefore voted that she be dismissed immediately from the service."

Brighton Elopers Hide, Wait to Wed

Triumphant in their love a young Brighton couple were secluded today in some Massachusetts town, waiting until the five-day law will let them wed, and smiling at efforts of the law to keep them apart.

Eileen Flynn, 18, gray-eyed daughter of Mrs. Michael Flynn of Mechanic street, and Andrew J. Saute, 22, who lives one door away from the Flynn home, disappeared Sunday night while Mrs. Flynn was eating supper with the Saute family.

Eileen was reported missing Monday after a friend, Loring Skiff, Northeastern University senior, became alarmed at her failure to keep a date with him.

The Saute family, however, said they believed their son and the girl had eloped.

A state-wide police alarm was sent out for the girl, and two nights later Saute's sister received an out-of-town call from the pair and talked to them.

"They tried to get married,' she explained, "in Springfield where we used to live, but they didn't have a license.

"Now they told me they've taken out intentions somewhere in the state and they're just waiting for the five days to elapse.

"When I asked them where they were, they just laughed."

Wife Loses Cat-Eye Gem

Loss of a valuable cat's eye gem, presumably in a South End night club, was reported to police early today by Mrs. John W. Goodrich, Clyde street, Brookline, wife of a Boston real estate broker.

Mrs. J. W. Goodrich

The stone is worth about $1000, Mrs. Goodrich said.

"I attach great sentimental value to it, however," she explained.

"Cat's eyes are only semi-precious stones. They're fairly common. Their value depends largely upon how near perfect they are. They're imported from India—this one was at least."

Couple Secure Bridal Waiver

The Virginia couple who could not get a marriage license in Boston yesterday on account of the holiday, not only got their license today, but also had Judge Elijah Adlow waive the five-day law. Then they set out to wed.

Jean Walker, 21, of Marion, Va., who arrived in Boston after a European trip, and Reuben B. Kreger, 24, bank clerk, who came from Richmond, Va., to meet her, spent the day yesterday scouring the city in an effort to be married.

They plan a honeymoon in Canada after their marriage.

Goodwin Urges Jail for Frauds

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today called upon the courts of the Commonwealth to impose fines or jail sentences or both on autoists convicted of false registration of their cars.

"I respectfully ask the courts," Goodwin said, "to do their part in punishing automobile owners who give false names and addresses on their registration applications.

"I request them not to place on file, suspend or afford probation in cases where autoists have been convicted of this offense."

The state-wide fake registration scandal was uncovered when excise tax collectors reported they had been unable to locate hundreds of automobile owners who had registered cars in various districts.

In Quincy 1000 tax bills were returned as "undeliverable."

In Bostn alone it was estimated there were at least 1500 false registrations, while in Brookline 158 out of 3000 tax bills were returned as undeliverable by postal officials.

Under a law passed last year motorists can be deprived of their registration plates unless excise taxes are paid within 10 days after Saturday next.

The "full penalty" demanded by Goodwin for false registrants calls for a fine of from $20 to $200 or a jail sentence of from two weeks to two years or more.

Dr. Manford S. Spaulding of Auburn, president of the Massachusetts Motorists Liability League, said the blame for the widespread scandal was on the doorstep of insurance agents.

"Insurance company agents," he declared, "do not investigate compulsory insurance applicants.

"They make a business of promising to get registration plates on the shortest possible notice and when they get the down payment on the policy give the matter no further consideration."

In his own county of Worcester, Dr. Spalding reported almost a hundred false registrations.

Those he cited were in Northboro, Leicester, Boylston and in the city of Worcester itself.

Dr. Spalding recommended a periodic checkup of all registrations similar to those carried out by the motor vehicle registry on the condition of driving equipment on cars.

Million Fire Under Control

LINDEN, N. J., Oct. 13 (INS)—Fire which for hours threatened to destroy vast gasoline and oil reservations was brought under control today after damage estimated at more than a million dollars had been inflicted on property of the Cities Service Company.

Flames which consumed nearly 10,000,000 gallons of oil and gasoline in more than 20 of the firm's 175 storage tanks had been extinguished in all but one tank.

Although definite cause of the blaze was not known, it was believed to have resulted from explosion of a tank of high-powered gasoline.

Body of Man Found in River

The identification was made by Miss Katherine F. Burns, who lives on a houseboat moored near that of Ramsey.

Mildred P. Wilson, 19-year-old New Brunswick girl whose "joy ride" as a hitchhiker brought her across the border to Boston, was on her way back to Canada today aboard the steamer Yarmouth.

Re-elect Green, Name '39 City, On AFL Card

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 13 (AP)—American Federation of Labor convention delegates listed as a special order of business today the selection of officers and a 1939 convention city after demonstrating to their leadership they approved no policy that might be regarded as an attack on the Roosevelt New Deal.

William Green, president 14 years, is expected to be re-elected.

San Francisco or Atlantic City likely will get next year's convention.

The delegates shunted into the executive council a resolutions committee report criticizing present day trends and tendencies in government affecting labor's traditional claim to self-government and self-action.

The report, presented by Committee Chairman Matthew Woll, an AFL vice-president, complained the philosophy and practices of "Socialism" were reflected in current tendencies to extend the domain of the state and make it supreme.

Delegates, interpreting the report as a broad attack on the national administration, quickly stirred up opposition to its adoption. Woll denied it was a criticism or condemnation of the New Deal and said it was offered only to "arouse thinking" about new philosophies in the making.

Gubernatorial Race Heats Up

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

While James M. Curley today continued his attack on the labor record of Leverett Saltonstall, anti-Curley Democrats opened their arms to the Republican standard-bearer in Boston.

Saltonstall was hailed as the next governor at the home of Mrs. Katherine Clougherty, Caspian way, Dorchester, where a group of Democrats stood in the reception line.

Former Governor Curley pictured Saltonstall as the foe of liberal labor legislation over a 20-year period, during rallies last night in South Boston.

He charged that interests allied with Saltonstall were responsible for many manufacturing plants leaving Massachusetts and branded as "callous hypocrisy" recent visits of the Republican nominee to manufacturing plants which were "notorious sweat shops" until Democratic administrations corrected the evils.

Saltonstall told Democrats supporting his candidacy that under his Republican regime there would be "no dictatorial form of government," and that "no office holder would have to sell his honor to hold his job."

He added that it was the duty of government to do all within its power to solve problems of poverty and unemployment, provide security for the aged and opportunity for the young.

G-Men Seek Smith Girl 'Eloper' Aide

Federal agents today sought a companion of George Everett Newhall, 25, alleged abductor of Shirley Smith, pretty Winchester High School graduate.

It was learned by the Boston Evening American that Shirley is resting at the home of Arlington relatives while G-Men seek an Arlington man who allegedly gave Newhall "references" for a job in Lexington, N. C.

Newhall was arrested with Shirley in that city on Oct. 1. She disappeared from a Winchester playground, where she was employed, August 29.

According to Federal men, Newhall visited the man sought the night before he disappeared with Shirley and told him his plans.

Newhall's friend, recently returned from North Carolina, described a "hide-out" and gave him letters of introduction to a former employer, the G-men charge.

'Seeing-Eye' Dog Recovered

John G. Hart, professor-emeritus of Harvard University, and his "seeing-eye" dog, Chumley, were reunited today by the Somerville police after the professor and his daughter, Nora, called off a Florida trip because of the dog's disappearance.

Chumley helped his master, who lives at 14 Gray Gardens West, Cambridge, through traffic and carried his bundles to compensate for his master's defective eyesight and hearing.

Two Somerville officers found the dog on Ivaloo street, took him to the police station and later turned the animal over to the Animal Rescue League where he was claimed by Miss Hart.

The dog is part German shepherd and part Great Dane with the Dane type features predominating.

Congress to Rush Vote On Politics, Relief Issue

Take Politics Out of Relief

"Citizens, before you vote, ask these questions of all candidates for Congress:

"Do you stand for the principle that there must be no political control or influence in the handling of relief funds, pump-priming money, agricultural benefit money or social security money?

"Do you favor the principle of having all such public expenditures supervised by a non-partisan, non-political board employing civil service personnel?

"Do you pledge yourself to work for the proper measures to put these principles into practical operation?"

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—The use of relief money in politics, directly or indirectly, will be one of the first questions to receive the attention of the new Congress in January.

It will be accompanied by a movement within the Democratic party, in the House of Representatives, to reduce the total annual appropriations for all relief purposes.

The Senate will have before it on the day it convenes a report by the Sheppard committee on campaign expenditures, which will not deal with the political influence of relief money, but which will involve that larger question.

SHEPPARD WON'T COMMENT

Senator Sheppard said today he could not make any comment upon the effort now being made through out the country, by those who will vote in the November elections, to ascertain how all candidates stand on the question of taking relief administration out of bureaucratic control in Washington, and placing it in the hands of a non-partisan commission.

His place as chairman of the special Senate campaign funds committee, and the certainty that his committee will make a report to the Senate, probably recommending stringent amendment of the Corrupt Practices act, prevents him from an expression at this time.

In this connection, it should be remembered that the Senate resolution creating the Sheppard committee did not authorize that committee to deal in any way whatever with the question of relief administration.

TWIN QUESTIONS INVOLVED

The twin questions of campaign funds, and the improper coercion of voters through the vast sums of public relief, and the even larger question of relief administration, are so closely related, however, that it is probable they will be considered eventually at the Senate in a single bill.

Sentiment for this is increasing at the House for two reasons, first the gravity of the national debt, now close to if not actually more than the limit fixed by law, and a discovery by congressional candidates that voters in their districts are increasingly apprehensive over this debt.

All that needs to be done by these apprehensive people, who see increased taxes staring them in the face—and they are right about it—is to interrogate all candidates for Congress in the pending campaign.

WATCH THESE SENATORS!

On June 2, of this year, one of several efforts in the Senate to take politics out of relief failed.

This was the so-called "Hatch Amendment." The vote was 37 to 40.

Of the Democratic senators who helped to defeat this amendment, ten are candidates for re-election.

They are: Hill of Alabama, Adams of Colorado, Barkley of Kentucky, Bone of Washington, Brown of New Hampshire, Caraway of Arkansas, McGill of Kansas, Overton of Louisiana, Pepper of Florida and Tydings of Maryland. Tydings subsequently sponsored the resolution setting up the Sheppard committee.

The voters in these states should be very careful to ascertain how these candidates now stand on the question of non-partisan relief.

Stricken Man Rushed Ashore

Clarence Vanderhoop, 34-year-old Oak Bluffs fisherman, today went under treatment at an Arlington hospital for a mystery ailment, after a hazardous flight from Oak Bluffs in the "flying ambulance" of the Salem Coast Guard base.

The victim, stricken Sunday, was accompanied by two sisters, Mrs. Ida Colby, a nurse, and Mrs. Viola MacDiarmid.

The Coast Guard ship took off from Salem in hazy weather and completed its dangerous mission in the darkness. Lieutenant George Holtzman brought the big ship into Salem safely, and Vanderhoop was taken in a private ambulance to Arlington.

Non-Partisan Relief Board Wins N. E. Aid

New Englanders today rallied to the standard of those back of the drive to take relief out of politics and politics out of relief.

The movement just started in Washington to put relief in the hands of a non-partisan commission found tens of thousands of supporters in Massachusetts.

Democrats as well as Republicans were recorded as in sympathy with the crusade.

James F. Egan of Springfield, Democratic candidate for Congress from the second congressional district, asked about his stand in the matter, wired the Boston Evening American:

"I am opposed to the political use of relief funds if such use has or been made or contemplated. As long as relief is necessary to keep our people from hardship I shall favor relief appropriations."

Lock-Out Story Wins Divorce

SALEM, Oct. 13—Because he testified his wife once told him she preferred her sister to himself, Ralph Brigham of Gloucester, today was granted a divorce.

Brigham told Judge John A. Costello he was married in 1931, and that in the fall of that year his sister-in-law and her child came to live with him.

Several times after that he was locked out of his house, he said.

The climax came in 1933 when he came home to find all his belongings in the yard in front of his house, he said; then he went home to his mother.

Florida Warned of Tropical Storm

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 13 (AP)—The Weather Bureau reported today a moderate tropical disturbance in the Gulf of Mexico would move over Florida during the next 24 to 36 hours, causing rains and a general squally condition.

The bureau in an 11 a. m. (E.S.T.) bulletin advised precautions by small craft in the Gulf of Mexico and Florida coastal waters and by persons on exposed islands and beaches.

The bulletin said, however, the disturbance "is not a storm of hurrican intensity, but merely a disturbance attended by rain and winds up to about 40 to 48 miles per hour."

Forecaster Grady Morton said the disturbed conditions probably would prevail over most of Florida. He said the disturbance covered a wide area and had no well-defined center.

Tropical Storm Now In Gulf to Head North

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13 (AP)—The United States weather bureau here indicated in an early morning advisory today a tropical disturbance in the mid-gulf of Mexico probably would curve to the northnortheast or northeast.

The advisory said the disturbance, attended by strong winds and squalls up to 48 miles per hour, had moved very little during six hours preceding midnight and was central at that hour 275 to 290 miles south of New Orleans.

The bureau said more rapid movement was indicated "within the next few hours." Warnings were issued west of Morgan City, La., to Port Arthur, Texas and northeast storm warnings were displayed from Morgan City to Carrabelle, Fla.

Lavender Mask Bandits Repeat

Three armed holdup men, masked with lavender-tinted handkerchiefs, today held up the proprietor of a Jamaica Plain lunchroom at pistol point and robbed him of $250.

According to police, the trio walked into Stone's Lunch on Green street, Jamaica Plain, when the proprietor, Dominic Budwetis, was alone, forcing him into a rear room.

Police said the description of the three men giving by Budwetis, particularly with reference to the colored masks, tallied with that given by other lunchroom owners robbed in South Boston and the South End during the past week.

Chinese Face New Jap Drive

HONGKONG, Oct. 13 (AP)—Heavy Chinese reinforcements were rushed from the East River district to the Bias Bay area near here today, with indications they might soon come to grips with a large new Japanese expeditionary force.

Roads to Waichow, 80 miles east of Canton and the garrison city nearest Bias Bay, were choked with commandeered trucks and buses filled with Chinese soldiers.

Waichow is believed one of the first objectives of the Japanese contingent, estimated at more than 35,000 landed yesterday at Bias Bay. It is connected with the South China metropolis of Canton by a good highway.

The Japanese appeared to be pushing steadily inland towards Tamshui, a town ten miles from the coast. From there the invaders would have 25 miles to go across comparatively flat country to reach the vital Kowloon-Canton-Hankow railway at a point, about 30 miles from the Hongkong frontier.

Increasingly bitter fighting was reported in the Pingshan-Nimshan district at the extreme northeast end of Bias Bay, where the Japanese apparently were consolidating for an advance up the highway to Waichow.

The defenders were expected to give the Japanese the first real resistance at Tamshui and farther inland beyond the range of Japanese naval guns.

Japs Mass Planes In New Southern Drive

CANTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—A total of 123 Japanese warplanes were counted passing over this south China metropolis today en route to bombing forays in all parts of Kwangtung Province. They concentrated on railroads.

Japan Blames Britain for New China Offensive

TOKYO, Oct. 13 (AP)—Japanese declared today that British and French aid to China through Canton necessitated the new South China offensive.

"The British purpose in holding Far Eastern fleet maneuvers off Hongkong ((last summer) was quite evident to Japan," the newspaper Kokumin said editorially.

"Both British and French should recognize their short-sighted view is responsible for expansion of the fighting," a Nichi Nichi editorial argued.

"The mere existence of operations in South China is sufficient warning to those powers who are extending assistance to China."

The government cautions foreign powers, including the United States, against movement of troops, warships and aircraft without 10-day notice to the Japanese command "lest unforeseen accidents occur."

An admiralty spokesman said today that "we can only hope foreign powers will warn us. I must refrain from saying what results may be expected if untoward incidents occur."

Japanese navy bombers caused 2000 casualties among Chinese troops yesterday, he said.

Hungary Sends New Ultimatum

KOMAROM Hungary (on the Czechoslovakia border), Oct. 13 (AP)—Hungary served an ultimatum on Czechoslovakia today to accept Hungarian territorial demands by 6 p. m. and sent strong troop reinforcements to the heavily-garrisoned Czechoslovak border.

At the hour of expiration of the ultimatum, Hungary's delegation to the interrupted mediation conference here will cross the Danube river to receive Czechoslovakia's reply, then decide "further procedure."

Slovaks awaited word from Dr. Ferdinand Durciansky, a Slovak minister, who was said to have returned to Bratislava, from a conference with Adolf Hitler.

Sources close to the Slovak delegation yesterday said Hitler had been asked to mediate and that Durciansky, aide to Dr. Joseph Tiso, the Slovak prime minister, had gone to Berlin on that mission.

MASS ON BORDER

Hungarian soldiers, horses, cannon, tanks and munitions crowded villages and roads leading to the border.

Schools of border towns were closed to serve as barracks for the army.

Czechoslovak and Hungarian troops were in fighting positions 250 feet apart on one section of the border. Yesterday the Hungarian army had moved up approximately 12,000 men to the frontier district.

The ultimatum was served at the conference on the minorities dispute by Koloman von Kanya, Hungarian foreign minister. Hungarians declared that concessions offered by Czechoslovakia were unacceptable.

In Budapest, Hungarians felt that the most critical day since the end of the World War had come for the country. Demands for military action were heard in the streets, especially from Hungarian Radical Nationalist quarters.

POLICE REINFORCED

Budapest police, apparently fearing anti-Czechoslovak demonstrations, were reinforced and ordered to carry rifles day and night.

A Czech delegate said that the "final" offer to Hungary included seven districts with a population of 400,000 Hungarians, 50,000 Slovaks, 30,000 Ruthenians, 50,000 Jews and 10,000 Germans. Plebiscites, he said, would be conducted in eight other districts.

Hitler Got More Than He Asked

LONDON, Oct. 13 (INS)—A number of important shifts in the British Cabinet, designed to aid the nation's gigantic rearmament drive, were forecast by informed sources today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain planned to return to London next Wednesday to hold a vital cabinet meeting.

Chancellor Hitler's announcement at Saarbruecken that the Reich will rush its western fortifications to completion is believed to have spurred Chamberlain's determination to prepare Great Britain for any warlike emergency that might arise.

It was pointed out that a majority of the British Cabinet ministers are distrustful of Hitler and are urging the British arms campaign be rushed.

Meanwhile, publication of a new official map of Czechoslovakia revealed that Hitler gained more of the Sudeten districts than he demanded even in his conversations with Chamberlain at Godesberg.

The map shows that Germany won slightly less than she demanded in the southwest part of Czechoslovakia but obtained larger areas in the north than Hitler demanded at Godesberg.

It also shows that the Czechs ceded to the Germans, Poles and Hungarians 90 per cent of their coal resources, half of their metal and clothing and ceramic industries, virtually all their lignite and porcelain resources and two-thirds of her textile industries.

New Attack Clue In Fiend Slaying

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—A 25-year-old domestic successfully repulsed two swarthy youths who tried to force her into a car early today at suburban Mamaroneck, a mile and a half from the Larchmont lot where the battered body of Mary Coyle, 17, was discovered Tuesday.

The Mamaroneck girl, whose name was withheld, told police the young men in a brown sedan accosted her as she left a railroad station.

Her scorning of their advances caused them to halt their car and attempt to force her into it.

IN SIMILAR CAR

Horrified, the girl ran screaming, and the pair drove away.

Police declined to say whether they believed this incident had any bearing on the Coyle murder but immediately broadcast a description of the youths as given by the hysterical girl.

They pointed to the similarity of the car driven by the youths to that seen near his New Rochelle home by Mortimer Hersh after he and his wife had heard a girl screaming for help a few hours before Mary's lifeless body was found.

CAME FROM VERMONT

The pretty victim, who attended Holy Ghost convent at Barre, Vt., until she came here four years ago, was battered to death after fatal being violated.

While authorities were reticent to discuss their investigation, it was reported they are seeking an escaped sex maniac from a Southern Connecticut asylum.

Dr. Amos O. Squire, medical examiner, awaited a report from a Brooklyn laboratory on the strands of hair found clutched in the 17-year-old victim's hands. This hair and flesh scraped from the murderer's face by Mary's fingernails constitute some of the strongest clues possessed by authorities.

Despite two and a half years of "[illegible] and terror" the statement said Jews of Palestine have not been deflected from peaceful [illegible] or retaliated against Arabs.

Conventa Stoned in New Outbreaks in Vienna

VIENNA, Oct. 13 (AP)—Catholics today reported three new Catholic-Nazi incidents in the midst of a Nazi campaign against Theodore Cardinal Innitzer and what Nazis called "clerical agitators."

Windows of two convents were said to have been stoned and a priest knocked down in the street.

Vienna Nazis used all their propaganda means in the campaign against Cardinal Innitzer whose palace was stoned by a mob last Saturday night.

Newspapers were filled with attacks against the archbishop and "political Catholicism." They asserted that "the cup is full; it is time to act."

More than 100,000 Nazis were expected in Heroes Square tonight for a "mass protest" and district leader Odilo Globocnik ordered "every decent-thinking person in Vienna" to appear there as public notice that the "entire population is against clerical provocations."

Joseph Buerckel, Chancellor Hitler's deputy in Austria, fresh from conferring with the Reichschancellor, was scheduled to proclaim measures to "end clerical provocations" at the meeting.

Nazi [illegible] said Buerckel will speak with the full authority of Hitler with whom he has discussed the Cardinal's attack Oct. 7 on the Fuehrer and the subsequent stoning of the Cardinal's palace. "We do not know what measures the Reich commissioner will announce."

McGlue Named At Graves' Trial

Attorney Lafayette R. Chamberlin [illegible] Graves [illegible]

Q—On August 23, 1938, did you talk with Graves at Charles street jail? A—Yes.

Q—Who was present? A—Attorney Francis P. Garland of the law firm of Hurlburt Jones & Hall, myself, and Graves.

Prosecutor Doyle at this point objected to the line of questioning. It was discontinued and Attorney Chamberlin withdrew the questions.

DISCUSSED FEES

Rand admitted, under questioning by Chamberlin, that he had a conversation with Attorney Edward F. McClennen, special counsel for the city in the Curley-Santosuosso suit relative to paying Graves for lost time and expenses.

Graves had asked for $100 a day, was brought out.

"McClennen said he thought $50 a day would be fair," Rand testified.

"He used the expression, 'difficult to evaluate a man's time.'

"He stated he, or they (meaning the city), would send advance expense money—$100 and then $150—and that the money would be sent to San Francisco for 'lost time.'"

In Montgomery's testimony it was brought out that Graves was employed by Ernest W. Brown, Inc., on a $[illegible] a year [illegible] basis.

Rand testified Graves told him several times [illegible] was [illegible] him.

Prosecutor Doyle asked him what he understood Graves meant by "the opposition." Rand replied:

"Mr. Santosuosso, or people in his behalf, or people in behalf of Curley."

REVEALS PHONE CALL

Graves, Rand stated under cross-examination by Attorney Chamberlin, told him on one occasion that he had received a "very attractive proposition."

Rand testified concerning a telephone call made to him by Graves in Chicago, on December 22.

"I was at the home of my daughter's father in law in Minneapolis," Rand stated. "Graves told me he was in Chicago and had been in touch with my office. He told me he had received a number of telephone calls, and thought they came from 'Doc' Santosuosso or someone in his behalf, and that he felt the other side was trying to contact him, and he felt he had better move."

"I asked him if he had traced the calls, and he said no.

"He said he needed money to make the move. I said I thought it was a proper expense for my office to make."

Subsequently, it was brought out Graves received $300 from Rand's office.

EXPLAINS TELEGRAM

Rand also explained under cross-examination the meaning of the supposedly "code" telegram from Graves containing the words "Consoling news Maze."

"Maze," he explained, was a misprint for "Mass." And the "consoling news," Rand testified, meant the news of Curley's defeat at the polls.

Rand was asked whether, when Graves gave him his affidavit in St. Louis involving Curley and Santosuosso in the alleged "deal," he thought Graves was telling the truth. He replied:

BELIEVED GRAVES

"I was of the opinion Mr. Graves had told me the truth when he made the affidavit in St. Louis."

He was asked whether he had a conversation with Graves about being paid for "lost time and expenses." He replied:

"Yes. I said I'd received a letter from him and an expense account dated November 2. I said I couldn't honor them and couldn't pay for them."

This, it was brought out, referred to Graves' alleged demand for $200 for "lost time and expenses" up to October 23.

"I said I couldn't assume any liability for the time prior to October 23," Rand testified.

In redirect examination Prosecutor Doyle asked Rand:

"What did Graves say to that?"

Rand replied:

"He said all right after I explained my attitude."

Editor Outlines Needs of Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 13 (AP).—Byron Price, executive news editor of the Associated Press, outlined to the annual meeting of the Associated Press Managing Editors' Association today the efforts being made by the news gathering association to meet the needs of newspapers in what he called "this trying time."

Price said economic conditions had forced many newspapers to reduce their space, with the result that the need had arisen as never before for news that was succinct yet left out none of the information that readers desired. In the last year, he said, the Associated Press has concentrated on efforts to tell the news of the world tersely while still keeping dispatches easily readable, informative and "full of life."

Hal O'Flaherty of the Chicago Daily News, another speaker at the association's opening session, said 42 newspapers have passed out of existence in the last year due to economic stringencies.

...INTO THE

20th Century Again!

A CASUAL flick of a switch and once more that warm familiar glow greets your family on an autumn night. Out of the half-light of ages past ... into the comforts of our own 20th century!

The fateful day of September 21, 1938 left havoc and darkness behind. But the tireless efforts of 1500 men and women, racing against time, brought back electrical service to the Boston Edison community. To the satisfaction of completing a difficult job is added the pleasure of reading the hundreds of letters written to us by our customers. They speak of the joy of a house rejuvenated by electricity . . . of a contentment born of a return to normal living. For these kind expressions we are grateful.

We take this opportunity to re-dedicate to the 420,000 customers on our system the full resources of our service. Awake to present needs, anticipating the future, our organization is of one mind: to keep the friendly glow forever burning.

Boston After Dark

—By GEORGE HOLLAND—

THE BOSTON COLLEGE VICTORY over Detroit must have had an immediate reaction—and a fortuitous one—along the Rialto . . . The night clubs were jammed, and most of the table-talk concerned the sensational last-seconds triumph of the Dobie-men . . . They, it seemed, are now the Dobie Darlings . . .

GEORGE HOLLAND

What your reporter noticed was a failure both around the tables and in the press-reviews of the game to compare the Merriwell finish of Fella Gintoff and his mates to the similarly Hollywood-ish end ing of the Boston College-Yale of 1920, or 1921 . . . An hour or two of pouring through yellowed clippings in this paper's library would be necessary to get the exact particulars of that starting victory . . .

But, if recollection serves with a fair sort of accuracy, the year was 1921, and the score was Yale 3, Boston College 2 with less than a minute to play . . . Then Jimmie Fitzpatrick, a southpaw kicker and thrower who was the Maroon and Gold's triple-threat, faded away back nearly to midfield and booted a drop-kick over the Eli goal-posts for the three points which gave Boston College one of the most sensational victories in the college's gridiron history . . .

Yesterday's ball game left its watchers limp . . . The one of more than a decade ago left its onlookers loony . . .

They played "For Boston," the B. C. anthem, in all the downtown night spots last night and into the morning . . . At the Penthouse of the Bradford a new show made its debut and here celebrants of the Newton team's victory had the great pleasure of seeing a first-rate show the while they drank toasts to Cignetti, Gintoff, Montgomery, O'Rourke—O'Rourke especially and they aver he will be all-American—and Worth Logue et al . . .

Not to forget "Gloomy Gil" Dobie, who shed six pounds of his sparse weight—by actual medical count . .

This boy, Roy Page, chief comedian at the Penthouse, looms more surely with each seeing as a clown who will land in the big money and the fame-class . . . He does a prize-fight sequence, abetted by "One Punch" White (who doubles as handy man at the Penthouse) which is hilarious in its present state, and which, with a bit of cleaning up and a writer to boot, would be a classic . . .

The basic idea is a good one . . . It spoofs the "protection" afforded a ring champion when he is faced with a set-up . . . It needs a new black-out, and less vulgarity . . . The chorus at the Bradford is attractive in the aggregate, the Benton Twins are lovely to look at and can sing and dance, and another girl singer whose name is Conley, or Connolly, has a perfect voice for the microphone . . .

A tap-dancer named Paul Winick has a dash of class, but Leon Prima and a six-piece band is so "hot" that you will be no more surprised than your reporter if it becomes the talk of the town . . . Leon the Leader had an imperfect microphone to sing against, but how he can blow a trumpet! . . . A show like this quickly gets in the air," and a column's praise will not influence greatly the stampede for tables that is inevitable . . . Nevertheless, we insist on going on record—and have

Meta Carlyle, mistress of ceremonies at the Towne Club is mildly going [illegible] . . . Winn Shaw is scheduled as the next attraction at the Crawford House [illegible] in response to the appeal of John Steele . . . After Winn, Judith Allen (Sonnenberg-Davis) of Belmont, is the probable featured performer . . .

John "Tip" [illegible] one of the great [illegible] coaching [illegible] at Fordham said that he has never been so thrilled as a spectator at a football game as he was watching the B. C.-Detroit struggle at Fenway Park . . .

This Fenno Rappolo, who plays clarinet, for the Leon Prima band, is really a rival of Benny Goodman . . . Moreover, he has that intellectual cast of countenance and stick-out personality which makes one think of the scholarly appearing Goodman . . .

John T. O'Dea Jr., son of Deputy Superintendent O'Dea (in charge of traffic) is smiling with a broken leg in a cast at his Pershing road home, Jamaica Plain . . . He was injured at the annual outing of the Franklin Golf Club when he slid into second base in a friendly baseball game . . . in American history at Harvard.

"The work I do at Harvard has absolutely nothing to do with my political connections. The meeting at Cantabrigia Hall last night was not held on University property, had no official sanction by the university and was attended by many persons other than Harvard faculty and Harvard students.

DEFENDS ACTIONS

"I repeat, emphatically, that I have not the slightest intention of allowing my political beliefs to touch upon my work at Harvard."

Hicks was [illegible] at his $45 a month home in [illegible] exclusive residential district, where he has a prominent Boston banker as his neighbor on one side and a big insurance company executive as his other neighbor.

In sharp contrast to the "bourgeois" respectability and modest luxury of his home [illegible] was last night's meeting at Cantabrigia hall.

That was avowedly Communist in personnel and purpose.

It was organized by Harvard's John Reed society, named for the and "social rebel" who died while espousing the cause of Russian Commounism and whose body the Soviet Government interred with high honors under the Kremlin at Moscow.

Tutor Hicks, unchastened by the bitter opposition his appointment at Harvard aroused last April, appeared as star performer on the program.

He made a vehement plea for support of "left wing" journalism and urged all present to contribute to a collection to furnish financial backing for The New Masses, leading U. S. Communist weekly.

On the speakers' platform with Hicks were Joseph North, editor of The New Masses and Archibald MacLeish, radical poet.

North in his address described a recent visit to war-torn Spain, praised heroism of American volunteers with the Communist "Lincoln Brigade" and congratulated Harvard on the number of its graduates serving with the Madrid forces.

GIRLS COLLECT FUNDS

Pretty girls passed the contribution box which was soon heaped by cash donations inspired by the occasion's emotional oratory.

As Massachusetts Elks, the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, members of the legislative Commission [illegible] ling subversive activities and other civic groups were receiving reports today of Hicks' Communistic debut in Harvard circles, a new Hicks announcement gave them an additional shock.

This was a widely advertised notice that Hicks would appear November 6, as a featured speaker at a Boston Arena rally in behalf of the national Communist party's candidates for election.

Fellow speaker of Hicks at that time will be Earl Browder [illegible] ing genius and [illegible] Communist forces [illegible] America.

Other headliners at the Arena meeting will be Otis Archer Hood, Communist candidate for governor of Massachusetts, and Philip Frankfeld, secretary of the Communist party in this state.

CONTROL and a good sense of balance are essential to the steelworker — and to the business man.

Successful management of a manufacturing business depends on a combination of three principal elements: sales, production, and sound finances. Experienced business men know how quickly serious dangers may arise if these elements are not kept in proper balance.

By arranging in advance for a strong banking connection, the New England business man takes an important step toward making sound financial policies fully effective and affording ready access to a reliable source of credit in time of need.

Banks should be conservative during periods of inflation and stoutly reliable in times of stress. For more than a century, in booms and in panics, The National Shawmut Bank of Boston has afforded outstanding protection to depositors and borrowers.

IN THE

STOCK MARKET

The stock market swung back onto the advancing trail today in vigorous fashion. Volume picked up sharply as gains running to 4 points were registered by leading shares.

10-11. Motors and steels sprang to life once again at the start and led the market fractions to more than a point higher. Trading was active as big blocks of stock frequently appeared. Coppers and rails stepped out on the upside and oils threw off recent easing tendencies. The market had real breadth and practically every group was ahead of pre-holiday closing prices. Anaconda took most active honors largely because of a 5000 share start. General Electric, New York Central and Radio were all over the tape. Prices continued to advance and by the end of the hour gains of fractions to around 3 points showed. Volume 590,000 shares.

• • •

11-12. Business news continued very cheerful. Base metal prices were given a fresh boost, steel and motor operations were reported gaining and residential building going forward at a brisk rate. The rubber and mail order stocks forged ahead without trouble. Commodity price strength encouraged a more liberal attitude towards related stocks. Coppers and issues such as American Woolen moved up. But the steels and motors were still the backbone of the rise. The occasional dribbling of liquidation failed to do more than dent the maximum gains. Transfers at noon reached 1,130,000 shares.

• • •

12-1. Buyers held the limelight as the third hour started. Many issues had moved into new high ground and the tape had to hustle to keep abreast trading. The profit-takers were still around but they hardly depressed prices. Quotations were not far off best marks. Westinghouse spurted more than 4 for the top gain among the actively traded stocks. Sloss Sheffield hurtled upward 8 points, but it was in a class by itself. The coppers continued to derive nourishment from the latest price rise and were about the most active of all groups. Volume climbed to 1,620,000 shares.

• • •

1-2. The oils did better under the leadership of Standard of Jersey. Substantial gains had been scored by rails, chemicals, buildings, retailers, rubbers and aviations following along in the wake of steels and motors. Loft again featured the low priced group. Considerable profit taking was reported by brokers but it was still ignored by avid buyers. Utilities were doing better on gr. wing hopes of a better understanding between the government and the industry. Rails shook off the wage controversy depressant and appeared certain to close at a new high for the move. Volume 2,040,000 shares.

Boston Exchange 104 Years Old

Members of the Boston Stock Exchange held a "birthday party" this afternoon on the floor of the exchange, in celebration of the 104th anniversary of the founding of the institution. A birthday cake, complete with 104 candles, was among the features of the celebration. Edward W. Gilbert, a member of the exchange who is celebrating his 87th birthday today, will cut the cake. Mr. Gilbert is a son of Samuel Gilbert, one of the original founders of the exchange.

Founded in 1834 by 13 Boston business men, membership was subsequently expanded to the total of 119 at which it is now limited.

Rail Workers Offer Long Range Program

By ROBERT HUMPHREYS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (INS)—The Railway Brotherhoods today asked the nation's major railroads to withdraw an ordered 15 per cent wage cut and accept instead a broad, comprehensive program authored by labor for the rehabilitation of the $26,000,000,000 industry.

The request was made before President Roosevelt's fact finding board by George M. Harrison, husky, youthful-appearing chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association.

Speaking slowly and with great earnestness, Harrison outlined the following program, asserting that he believed many of the railroads might go along:"

1—Competition—A "genuine" attack upon the question of competition by placing all forms of transportation, including buses, trucks, water and air carriers, along with the railroads under a Central Federal Regulatory body; and that the government provide low interest loans to the railroads for the purchase of new light, high speed equipment for more frequent passenger and freight service so that "the public can move when it wants to move".

2—Rate Policy—Revision of the present Interstate Commerce Commission rate making policy to eliminate high rates in depressions, lower rates in periods of prosperity, through the creation of a new rate base "sufficient to enable the railroads to create reserves to tide them over periods of depressions. Amendment of existing law to require railroads to establish reserves of three times their annual fixed charges, and restriction on dividend payments until debt is reduced to a "reasonable" level.

3—Reorganization—Under the heading financial reorganization, existing law should be amended to further restrict the ICC's authority to approve funded debt issues so that the debt could not exceed 40 per cent of the rate-making value of the property. Permit voluntary reorganization, but reorganizations enforced by law if after "reasonable" probation period the debt limitation had not been met.

4—Consolidations—Consolidations only when in the public interest after a "searching" examination by the ICC with provision for "fair and equitable treatment" of labor and mergers; and elimination of the present railroad practice of paying "rentals" to the roads which they take over.

5—Financing—Short-term loans by the federal government for relief of the railroads, conditioned on meeting all of the above requirements.

Harrison said the program was submitted with the approval of the presidents of 18 of the 21 brotherhoods. Three brotherhoods, including the Railway Trainmen, headed by A. F. Whitney, did not participate in formulating the plan which was drafted, Harrison indicated, in Washington last night.

N. E. Business Carries On

By International News Service

"Business as usual."

This was the answer given the New England Council today in response to its question to industries in flood and hurricane damaged areas as to the effect the disaster would have on business.

The survey revealed the majority of industries were affected only temporarily and that normal operations were resumed following restoration of power and communication facilities.

In the plants where damage was heavy, orders are being filled on schedule by transferring production to other New England mills owned by the same companies.

U. S. Income At New High

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Statistics are still telling the real story of recovery's progress. The latest national income figure reveals a new high for the year and the fourth consecutvie monthly increase.

Other sidelights on the national income include the narrowing of the gap between 1937 and 1934 figures. The figure for August, the latest full month available, shows a decline that is not only less than the average for the first eight months but a smaller than that of any single preceding month.

A study of the situation must include preliminary consideration of September and a forecast for October. In regard to the latter it may be said with a large degree of certainty that further expansion took place.

October prospects are also pointing in the direction of further gains. Shipments of farm products are increasing, prices holding firm, and industry actively expanding. Both should be of importance and in pushing the aggregate figure to a new high for the year.

Holiday inspection of stock graphs reveals the opposition encountered by proponents of the rise. Most composite indices are definitely flattening out, and several group averages look toppy. It takes something akin to fanaticism for the bull side to deny the market needs a rest.

Two happenings that might be connected with the above concern the holiday itself and the short position. The latter has shrunken further and the technical market position must be considered weaker. The decline took place when short sales were supposed to have been encouraged by unsettling news developments. As for the holiday, such interruptions often prove the temporary stopping place of an upturn.

Economy Investigation Is Real Need

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 — Senator O'Mahoney's discussion of the so-called monopoly inquiry is enlightening, and his position is such that what he says is important. Briefly, the senator's ideas about the situation may be summed up as follows:

"Something has gone wrong."

"Planned economy" is probably the remedy.

The government must do the planning.

Big business is bad, and must be run by the government.

Corporations are dangerous, and not like private persons; but are public.

• • •

Certainly something has gone wrong; but the evils of which the Senator complains merely show his bias. He is far from pointing to the underlying fundamental evils.

He mentions unemployment, and that is a great evil. But what is the cause of it? As to inadequate "mass purchasing power" and "concentration of economic power and wealth," his talk is reminiscent of Populism and the trust-busting days.

He is headed toward unsound monetary schemes of "creating purchasing power," and toward "big-ness" as an evil regardless of efficiency.

What has "gone wrong" is exactly this. We have been attempting to "create purchasing power" by means of credit manipulations.

We have been trying to avoid the painful but necessary correction of war and post-war financial sins by casting our debts upon "the government." These things have been going on for at least 10 years.

They began with the notion that the federal reserve system could control price levels, and regulate business activity—chiefly by open market operations. Then there came the "high-wave policy." And finally, with the 1929 crash, everybody turned to "the government" to save himself from his speculative folly.

Do you think all this is going to be helped by more government planning?

• • •

What we need is an inquiry into the evils and abuses of so-called "planned economy."

Our great danger today is that the hands of bureaucrats and public office holders are "ganging up" on us for the purpose of making their jobs permanent. Each one wants a bigger and better office and force of clerks, so that he can conduct another investigation of what has gone wrong.

New Mark-Up In Copper

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—Copper for delivery in the United States was advanced in price today to 11 cents a pound, up ¼ of a cent to the highest quoted in nearly a year.

It was the fourth mark-up in the price this month and represented a gain of a full cent a pound since late July, when industrial revival expanded demand and enabled producers to begin reducing unsold metal which had been accumulating on their hands for months during the 1937-38 business recession.

Gen. Motors Recalls 4200

DETROIT, Mich. Oct. 13 (INS)—A total of 4200 workers have been recalled by Buick and Chevrolet divisions of General Motors as production schedules for the next two months were stepped up to meet the demand for new automobiles.

Three thousand men will return at the rate of 300 a day at the Chevrolet plants and 1200 at the rate of 100 a day at Buick, it was announced. Under their plan No. 1 which nurses Buick bodies can well spend 500 men.

The increases will bring Buick employment to 11,300 and Chevrolet to 12,000.

Bank Clearings Rise Above 1937 Level

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—Bank clearings in the week ended yesterday topped the 1937 level for the first time since June 8, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. Total clearings in 22 leading cities were $4,455,516,000 or 2.5 per cent above the 1937 figure.

Clearings in New York City were $2,874,525,000 or 1.6 per cent above last year, while the remaining 21 cities had a total of $1,580,991,000 or 4.6 per cent over last year.

A Great Principle of Democracy

WHEN PRESIDENT WASHINGTON learned that his name had been used for "electioneering purposes," he wrote a stinging LETTER OF REBUKE to John Francis Mercer.

Let this letter remind AMERICANS TODAY that the liberty to choose their own Representatives in Congress may not be lost by the people without LOSS OF LIBERTY ITSELF.

Excerpts from that letter to Mr. Mercer, famous as a soldier, Congressman and Governor of Maryland, in which one of the GREAT PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY was set forth, are reprinted herewith:

SEPTEMBER 26, 1792.

"I COME now to another part of your letter, and in touching upon it, do not scruple to declare to you that I was not a little displeased to find by a letter from Capt. Campbell to a gentleman in this neighborhood, that my name had been freely used by you or your friends for electioneering purposes, when I had never associated your name and the election to-gether; and when there had been the most scrupulous and pointed caution observed on my part, not to express a sentiment respecting the fitness or unfitness of any candidate for Representative that could be construed, by the most violent torture of the words, into an interference in favor of one, or to the prejudice of another.

"Conceiving that the exercise of an influence (if I really possess any) however remote would be improper; as the people ought to be entirely at liberty to choose whom they pleased to represent them in Congress . . .

"I instantly declared to the person who showed me the letter . . . that such a measure would have been incompatible with the rule I had prescribed to myself, and which I had invariably observed, of not interfering directly or indirectly, with the suffrages of the people, in the choice of their representatives . . ."

THE HOG!

Editor, Boston Evening American,
Boston, Mass.
Dear Sir:

I am enclosing a picture that I drew from a map out of a paper. It is just an idea. Yours truly,
Kenedy, Texas. PRAEGER NEYLAND.

The Editor Says:—Reader Praeger Neyland's "just an idea" makes an interesting, forceful cartoon. We are glad to print it.

It has been said a good picture is worth ten thousand words; that often the artist's pencil is mightier than the writer's pen. For hundreds, Mr. Neyland will provide convincing proof.

MAN-MADE MOONLIGHT is predicted by science. Dr. V. A. Bailey, eminent British professor, writes that a single radio station could emit sufficient electrical power to illuminate a patch of the sky sixty miles in diameter.

Explaining the technical details necessary to experiment with this artificial aurora, Dr. Bailey voices the opinion that it would solve the problem of countryside lighting and end the hazards of darkness in cities.

This inspiring "preview of tomorrow" will interest thousands in New England, particularly young men who attend our Boston colleges and scientific schools. They will see here a challenge to look beyond current crises to the great and wonderful things that can and should be accomplished.

In the past, our Boston educational institutions have made notable contributions to science in many fields, from unveiling the mysteries of blood to smashing the atom. Now, it would be logical and proper if one of them gave us practical man-made moonlight.

SHOOTING ACCIDENTS receive deserved prominence in New England news. A Cambridge boy, wounded while hunting in the Canton-Dedham forest, is taken to Boston City Hospital and lives. Other young men in other cities are less fortunate. Many die.

Mishaps due to firearms concern everybody, fathers and mothers especially. Boys and girls, lacking experience and knowledge, will handle pistols, revolvers and rifles with a carelessness that invites disaster.

Parents should recognize this fact and do everything in their power to keep loaded guns out of the hands of sons and daughters.

No amount of tears will bring back a life AFTER a bullet has pierced a heart. The parental duty is to act BEFORE childish curiosity and negligence cause the accident.

Will Slavery Triumph?

By EDWIN C. HILL

Copyright, 1938, King Features Synd., Inc.

ONE OF THE WISEST men I know is a button-maker, with a dingy, old-fashioned office on the lower West Side of New York—letter press, roll-top desk, old Carrara marble fireplace, etc. He is an elderly gentleman, the third of his generation in button-making.

He doesn't like publicity, so I withhold his name.

The effect of the fall of Czechoslovakia on the button business started him off. He disposed of buttons quickly and definitely, and then swung into the world issue of the battle of the free state against the slave state.

"It is entirely possible," he said, "that the free state will be overwhelmed by the slave state. The steady advance of the latter indicates, in my opinion, the start of a new Armageddon in human society."

"Why," I asked, "do you think there may be a show-down between the free state and the slave state?"

THE STATE IS THEIR MASTER
Japanese Women at Work In Silk Mill

"Because it is quite evident, under existing conditions, that the free state cannot long compete against . . . slave state. I cite Japan, but I want to make the reservation that it is less in the pattern of the slave state than Russia or Germany.

"However, with the military caste dominating the country, and tolerating the great industrial and mercantile dynasties, such as the Mitsuis and Mitsubushis, only for their own immediate purposes, Japan is in the general feudal pattern of the slave state, and is enjoying its economic advantages."

I asked my friend whether there couldn't be some intermediate form of state in which there would be a measure of freedom for any man who deserved it.

"The tiny Greek states were more or less of this form," he said. "They were, however, essentially slave states, the Helots outnumbering the Athenians by seven or eight to one. But there is a sharp difference to be noted between these and the modern slave state. In Greece there was freedom of thought and opinion for intelligent men."

'Bugs' Baer Says:

WITH a melancholic daze just around the corner we recollect a social scene that brought snobbish joy to the heart of the hooey polot. When we mention the hoi palookas we segregate and classify those free and equal tourists who spend their time abroad copping ganders at the beautiful, the doomed and the ballyhooed.

THIS MOST beautiful view we saw ahead was the Dook and Dookess of Windsor at the Casino in Cannes. The Dook was looking a bit unraveled around the edges. The Dookerine was magnificent. She was wearing the family tinsel and was lighted up like a lightning bug's rumble.

WHILE it doesn't seem possible we could have sworn they were being used by the Casino as window-dressing. The Dook seemed tired of it all and acted as if he would trade it in for a box of wet matches.

Why Harvard Sons Go to Night School

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International Copyright and All Other Rights Reserved.)

WE HAVE been learning about adult education as practiced in Pelham.

This is a well known community up in Westchester County, New York.

In short, Pelham is a right classy sort of spot and it is inhabited by successful bankers, and merchants, and editors, and lawyers and the like of that. Most of the Pelhamites, male and female, are probably educated persons and many of them went through Yale, and Harvard, and Princeton, and Columbia, and Smith, and Vassar and similar institutions.

UNDER the circumstances you would think they had all the l'arnin' they want and would be too tired at the close of day to think of anything but the good old feathers so it is somewhat surprising to learn that about one out of ten of the grown folks in Pelham's population of 12,000 are going to school evenings.

It appears that in response to numerous requests the Pelham School Board some time ago appointed a committee to investigate the matter of adult education, which means exactly that—the education of grown-ups. Or perhaps it is more accurate to say the further education of grown-ups, allowing that they have some education to begin with.

The committee found that nearly everybody in Pelham seemed to be interested, so it raised a fund to defray certain necessary expenses and the School Board provided school rooms for the classes and now adult education goes forward lickity-split up yonder in Westchester County. Where they had expected an enrollment of, say, 200 tops, the Committee now finds itself with 850.

Classes are held once a week with courses consisting of lectures and demonstrations in literature, astronomy, art, political science, government, finance, interior decorating, and even cooking and sewing.

THE man who was telling us about adult education in Pelham said that, for instance, the course in finance for women is quite popular and for the teachings in that course they got smart fellows from the big insurance companies and banks. He said he has no doubt that in time the Pelham ladies will know more about finance, household and otherwise, than J. Pierpont Mor-

So a thought, instead of being "a brain flutter" is actually the core of your existence the thing from which all action springs. Your thought is the most living thing about you - far more living than your flesh; far more powerful.

Your thought is the CENTER OF YOUR LIFE. You don't live in your bones, blood or muscles. Those things do not determine your career, shape your character. Your thought determines and shapes you. You live in your thoughts. YOU ARE WHAT YOU THINK.

• • •

NOW do you begin to see the menace of thought? You are what you think and ALL you think. For ALL THOUGHTS have life. ALL THOUGHTS shape and determine you. Not just the proper expedient thoughts, but the improper ones, also, the inexpedient ones, the thoughts you're ashamed of, even the thoughts you've forgotten.

THEY ALL LIVE! AND SOONER OR LATER THEY WILL ALL FIND EXPRESSION.

You can't think a thing without being marked by that thing - or without the whole world seeing that mark sooner or later.

You cannot think SPITE - or HATE - or ENVY or LUST or SWINISHNESS and keep those impulses chained in den or sty. For they live. THEY LIVE! They are the only part of you that does live. Your hands, feet, mouth, ears these things are but tools. Only your thoughts have life.

New York Cavalcade by Louis Sobol

RECENTLY I mentioned a succulent paragraph from an early Rupert Hughes description of a typical theatrical First Night in the softer-mooded year of 1904. Gayly apparelled and opulently bejeweled ladies arrived with their attentive cavaliers in carriages and the less fortunate, but equally enthusiastic apostles, jammed the trolley cars which in those days presumably dumped them in front of the theater.

THE FIRST NIGHTERS of 1938 would not think of drawing up in front of, let's say the Music Box, in an open barouche or in a sulky unless it were some one like Robert Benchley, who would do it for the devil of it, no doubt and probably aperch the nag's back instead of on the cushions. But our First Nighters, in their jewels and furs and dinner coats or tails, do not make quite a show of it as their shiny gas buggies purr up in front of the doors and empty out their charges. Other First Nighters crowd into the faster subways. So, allowing for the changes that the passing years always bring, there is little difference between the 1904 First Nighter and our 1938 First Nighter.

POLITEST and promptest in their seats are our critics, who naively enough seem to believe the announcements of the management that the curtain will rise promptly at 8.30 or 8:40, which it never does except on the rarest of occasions, usually on the one night when you, yourself, contrary to your habitual promptness, arrive a few minutes late.

VIVACIOUS HOPE HAMPTON

THE CRITICS are not [illegible] It is true that George Jean Nathan rarely reappears for the second act unless it is a highly entertaining show to his way of thinking, which may not be yours. Mr. John Mason Brown is usually the first to scurry out during intermission, followed by his very pretty wife, but it is Mr. Brooks Atkinson who ordinarily starts the exodus of the aisle seaters just before the final curtain.

More patient is the rotund, genial Kelcey Allen, who will remain to the bitter end - although it is true I have often caught him napping as the curtain descended. I can usually tell from Mr. Burns Mantle's expression just what he thinks of a play but never from studying the handsome face of Mr. John Anderson.

THERE ARE NOT as many so-called Inveterate First Nighters as there were when I became a regular attendant of Broadway First Nights. But usually you may count Jules Brulatour and the vivacious Hope Hampton, Jules Glaenzer, the Jeweler, and Hiram Bloomingdale, the Merchant; Will Rhinelander Stewart, the Club-Man, and his handsome bride; tall, energetic Herbert Bayard Swope; stern-looking Lee Shubert, glum-faced George S Kaufman his wife, Beatrice; Dorothy Parker, when she is in town; Moss Hart, and occasionally Richard Rodgers and his rebellious partner, Larry Hart - though never together.

Wife's Liking For Parties Estranges Family

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

This is not the troubled problem of a young couple. We have been married 23 years and have a son, a splendid boy of 21. We had a very happy life together, but for the last three years my wife has been acting strangely. She goes out with other women friends to beer parties and sometimes doesn't get home until daylight.

These night parties often make her very sick, but she's ready for the next one. She's a good wife and mother and I love her very much. I have tried to reason with kindness and I have been harsh too, but nothing does any good.

[I] hate to break up my home. She will ask me to forgive and forget, promise never to do such a thing again and still persist in going out to these affairs. What can be wrong? What can be done?

A HUSBAND.

Don't you think it would be well to take your wife to a doctor and have him see what's wrong with her? Sometimes women become nervously unstable when they've been good wives and mothers for a number of [illegible]. Certainly no woman can be justified who [illegible] a good home and estranges her husband and son just to go on beer parties.

HAND EXERCISES ARE BENEFICIAL

Keep your hands supple. They can't move beautifully unless fingers and wrists are flexible.

In spare moments do your hand exercises. Spread out fingers and thumbs fan-fashion, bring them into the palm of the hand with strong muscular exertion.

Warts are queer things. Applying castor oil once a day for several weeks will often cause them to disappear.

Solution for Young Skin Troubles Offered

By ARLINE GOULD

YOUTH is bad enough a time . . . with its dreadful uncertainties, and its unanswered questions and mountain-high problems . . . without the added burden of a blemished skin. Then you can run into immediate real trouble! Or start a chain of complexes that go on and on with results in the future. But not if you're an understanding someone who, like a certain cosmetic creator, realizes that skin treatment as well as body functions and mental drill will make for the beauty that's every young person's desire and right!

This enlightened person believes that the use of adult preparations on a young face is a cardinal skin sin. So she has brought out not only a line of perfectly compounded "young skin" make-up (which consists of powders and lipsticks) but a complete group of preparations for the young ... [illegible]

Music Appreciation Series for Juniors

By BETTY ALDEN

ON THREE Saturday mornings during the winter, members of society's younger generation will have to put away their dolls, skis and games for just an hour in favor of appreciation of music . . .

It was all started by a group of Cambridge women who wanted some way of providing their youngsters with concert hall etiquette and appreciation of the famous musical gems, without taking them to a full length concert in Symphony Hall . . . which is pretty tiresome for a twelve-year-old and apt to make him so bored he never wants to go again . . .

They organized a series of Saturday Morning Junior Concerts, with members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra as musicians, and their plan was an immediate success . . . Now the series is embarking on its fifth season and many a future Symphony or Boston Opera guarantor gets his or her first real understanding of the musical arts through these delightful programs . . .

• • •

Series Starts Next Month

THE FIRST of the 1938-39 series will take place November 5 with the offspring of such socially active young mothers as Mrs. Theodore Lyman Eliot, Mrs. Charles Bolster, Mrs. Donald Born, Mrs. Gilbert Swift and Mrs. Charles Toppan among the throng of youthful music lovers . . .

The committee remains essentially the same as when the concerts were organized in 1933 . . . Mrs. Eliot Hubbard, Jr., mother of Celia, one of this season's attractive debs, heads the group with Mrs. Harold Arnold, Mrs. Oakes I. Ames, Mrs. Charles C. Peabody, Mrs. A. Sprague Coolidge, Mrs. Frederick L. Day, Mrs. Henry M. Shreve, Mrs. John H. Taylor, Mrs. Charles Toppan and Mrs. Grafton D. Perkins assisting . . .

The fame of the concerts has spread so far and wide that subscribers represent a wide range of territory . . . Mrs. Frank Parkman comes in from Southboro with a group of youngsters and other out of town subscribers include Mrs. Charles Cabot of Newton, Mrs. Charles W. Burden and Mrs. Charles F. Batson, Jr., of Wellesley Hills, Mrs. Charles B. Bird of Norwood, Mrs. Edward A. Hall of Needham, Mrs. Hamilton Edwards of Swampscott, Mrs. Allan H. W. Higgins of Marblehead and Mrs. Robert M. Holt of Lexington . . .

News Along the Debutante Front

INVITATIONS have been issued for one of the liveliest tea dances on the debutantes' calendar . . . the party which Mr. and Mrs. A. Barr Comstock are giving on the eve of the Harvard-Princeton game to present their daughter Dorothy . . . The Cambridge Boat Club will be the scene of the affair to which many grown ups as well as members of the younger generation have been invited . . . Dorothy is a granddaughter of Professor Dewey of Harvard . . .

We find it easy to recognize Martha Crocker, by the unique little stocking cap she sometimes wears in place of a hat . . . It is made of black wool to match one of her dresses, and is gayly embroidered with white . . . She's the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Crocker of Milton . . .

Patricia Spencer, who made her debut last winter, has just returned from a summer vacation in Europe . . .

BOSTON CRIME REPORTER by FRED MAC ISAAC

Hired Killers Try To End Death Probe

What Has Happened:

Addison Francis Murphy, young reporter, goes to work on a Boston newspaper. He undertakes to solve the mystery of the slaying of Dolores Vanini, beautiful artists' model. He finds Quentin Robbins, handsome young portrait painter, in jail facing certain conviction and execution for the crime.

In today's chapter, Reporter Murphy is talking with a lawyer who apparently represents the man who occupied the apartment adjacent to the murder scene.

Now Continue:

REPORTER MURPHY pauses in the shadow of Bunker Hill Monument. He looks over his newspaper and forms a plan to trap the murderer.

CHAPTER FOUR

(Characters, names and addresses in this story are fictitious; no reference to actual persons or places is intended.)

It was a region of fine red brick Colonial-type homes set in large gardens and protected from the street by fine shade trees. Mr. Slick, the lawyer, occupied a mansion which was even larger and more substantial than its neighbors.

A manservant answered the doorbell and stated, upon learning the visitor's name, that Mr. Slick was expecting him in the library. This proved to be an imposing room, its walls lined with shelves filled with yellow, leather-bound law books, its furniture done in red leather.

A small, dark, keen-eyed man with a sharp, pointed chin and a prominent nose was standing before the open fire gazing reflectively into the flames unnecessary upon a summer evening. He turned and gave the visitor a penetrating look.

"Mr. Murphy," he remarked. "Glad to see you. Sit down. Cigarette?"

"Thanks."

A $500 BRIBE

Slick pointed an arm and finger at him. "Now let's get to the point," he declaimed. "You blew into town a couple of days ago looking for a newspaper job. You talked Tom Gorman into giving you some cash and the promise of a berth in return for a big story."

"I don't deny it, Mr. Slick."

"You're [illegible] tramp reporter, eh?"

"Well, I wonder."

"Boston doesn't look any better to [illegible] than any other town."

"Same as most, to be frank."

"How would you like a job in San Francisco and the money to get there?"

Addison Murphy's [illegible] brows went up. "You offering it to me?"

"Yes, I'm making you an offer."

He shook his head. "Sick of the West," he stated. "Boston will suit me for a few months."

"But you won't suit Boston. I'll give you five hundred dollars to get out of town."

Murphy grinned. "Now that's good of you. You don't look like a philanthropist, which makes it even nicer of you."

"I'm no philanthropist. I'm making a deal with you."

"In that case you'll have to raise the ante."

"A thousand bucks?"

"Not interested."

"Five thousand?" he said without hesitation.

SLICK EXPLAINS

"Now you have awakened my curiosity. You called up Gorman to ask if he was opening up the Vanini murder case. He told you I was working on it. Why, is it worth five thousand to get me to knock off work?"

Slick pulled up a chair and sat down opposite the reporter. "You're a shrewd fellow," he said. "I might as well be frank. Dolores Vanini was a nobody. So is Quentin Robbins. She named him as her murderer and her statement is supported by witnesses who prove that he had the opportunity. He will be tried, convicted and executed. The papers gave the yarn as big a play as it warranted and then dropped it. There is no doubt whatever of the man's guilt."

"I can't find any motive for it."

"It will be brought out in the [illegible]. She was two-timing him and he discovered it. Jealousy—best motive in the world. That story is all washed up, Murphy. You can't get anything which will justify The Sphere in reopening it. So you won't land on the staff of the paper and in a few days you'll probably have to get out of town on a freight car, the way you arrived."

"But you will make me a present of five thousand dollars so I can depart on a Pullman," remarked the reporter. "Sweet of you, I call it."

"NO THANKS"

"I told you I was no philanthropist. A client of mine, a married man with a lovely wife and several fine children was mixed up with this Vanini woman. He will be ruined if his name is brought into it. Get me?"

"Yep. Robbin's lawyer will ruin him at the trial even if I accept your munificent offer."

"No. Robbins doesn't know the identity of the woman's lover."

"I see."

"Five thousand is a lot of money."

"I never had more than five hundred at one time in my life, I refuse your offer."

"You do? You intend to break up a happy home, to disgrace innocent children—"

"No, Mr. Slick. I'm investigating a murder case. If I become convinced that Robbins killed this woman I won't [illegible] of a story. My job [illegible] a mystery. If I find [illegible] did not kill her [illegible] to run down the real [illegible]."

"Robbins is guilty."

"Then your [illegible] doesn't have to worry about me."

"Why not take the [illegible] I've offered you now? [illegible] you won't even get a job."

"I'm an old fashioned newspaperman," replied the other. "My kind of reporters have no use for money and can't be bribed. That all you have to say to me?"

"Only that [illegible] a [illegible]," said Slick angrily. "Good night."

Murphy rose and nodded and moved toward the door. The lawyer followed him.

"Won't change your mind?" he demanded. "Cash in hand."

"No, thanks."

"Well, sorry to have brought you all the way out here. It's a long walk to the street car. I'd send you down in my bus but my wife is using it."

"I've done a lot of walking in my time, Mr. Slick."

"Well, good night."

CLOSE TO DEATH

He slammed the door. Murphy moved down the path to the street. Passing the garage, he observed—nothing escaped him—that the doors were only partly closed and two fine motor cars stood within. He grinned.

Slick didn't care if he got sore feet. He walked down to the corner of Crampton Street and turned left toward Commonwealth Avenue and he observed, a hundred yards [illegible] parked [illegible]

[illegible] Slick was [illegible] in the pocket [illegible] the reporter [illegible]. Arrangements had been made that [illegible] reporter would [illegible] the lawyer was in touch with the underworld.

Murphy drew forth a package of cigarettes, took one and lighted [illegible] without [illegible].

THE GANG'S PLOT

Slick had made the appointment through the city editor of the Sphere. [illegible] Murphy [illegible] was known and the lawyer was [illegible] to permit [illegible] a short distance from his residence.

[illegible] he was doomed.

He tossed away the [illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] gazelle [illegible] across the street [illegible] a two-foot hedge and [illegible]. He raced past a [illegible] and over a five foot [illegible] the [illegible] of a residence. And, as he [illegible], he heard the roar of a motor [illegible] of gas and the sound [illegible] rapidly driven down the street.

He had guessed right. Gunmen [illegible] waiting for him and [illegible] Rothstein's for the signal to kill or let him pass. They had seen him approaching and had been baffled when he darted away.

However he was far from being safe. That car would patrol the neighborhood, swinging up one street and down another at top speed. They had had a look at him and they would recognize the pedestrian when he ventured to walk toward Commonwealth avenue or any street leading to it.

STILL IN DANGER

In fact, as he passed the big home in the garden of which he had entered, a motor car was coming swiftly up the street and a spotlight was sweeping the sidewalk. Murphy ducked down behind a car which stood in the driveway and the death car tore past.

But it would be back. It could cover the entire neighborhood in a few minutes and dash along Commonwealth avenue while its occupants scrutinized persons waiting at white posts for a trolley car.

He rose, moved along the side of the car, a coupe, and thrust his hand through the open window. His fingers touched a bunch of [illegible]

Bob Burns Great In Typical Will Rogers Role

"BAZOOKA-LESS" BOB

Paramount's newest star is neither glamorous nor streamlined. Nevertheless he'll leave the lovelies answering to that description far out of the running in the box-office sweepstakes if his "Arkansas Traveler" retains its heart-warming, folksy qualities in future installments.

"Arkansas Traveler" delighted the holiday crowds at the Paramount and Fenway.

Bob Burns has discarded his bazooka and his wise-cracks to play the title role in "Arkansas Traveler." He appears as an itinerant printer who curbs his wanderlust to aid the widow and daughter of a man he once knew. Burns' naturalness and homely philosophy in his first straight dramatic assignment are reminiscent of the late Will Rogers and augur well for the studio's plan to expand the adventures of the "Traveler" into a series a la the Judge Hardy screen serial.

• • •

That excellent stage and screen actress Fay Bainter plays the "Widow" Allen to Bob's "Traveler." She has been experiencing great difficulty in holding on to her late husband's paper as a result of the scheming of an ambitious politician, Matt Collins, played to the hilt by Lyle Talbot.

The arrival of the "Traveler" introduces a vigorous note of challenge into the until then losing fight. He develops a more courageous editorial policy, coming out against a big bond issue from which Collins hopes to reap a fortune. The fight is now out in the open.

[illegible]

Jean Parker, who has always had more spirit and charm than her studio bosses ever gave her credit for, shows plenty of oomph as the widow's daughter.

Injection of more humorous and less trite situations should make "The Arkansas Traveler" an entertaining fellow to adventure with in succeeding installments of his vivid, unconventional career.

Boris Karloff plays the title role in the companion picture, "Mr. Wong, Detective," Houston Branch's screen play that is based upon Hugh Wiley's stories in Collier's Magazine. In his inscrutable Oriental fashion, Wong solves an apparently unsolveable murder and then calmly resumes his study of Oriental music.—P. D.

'If I Were King' Honors To Rathbone at Met

By PEGGY DOYLE

Producer-Director Frank Lloyd's "If I Were King," which opened simultaneously yesterday at Boston's Metropolitan Theater and in six other cities, is a thoroughly modernized, vitalized version of the 1901 Justin Huntly McCarthy play in which E. H. Sothern starred.

Ronald Colman's 15th century poet-vagabond, Francois Villon, is any present day brilliant, ambitious youth possessed of the quality of leadership. And, despite her royal raiment, Frances Dee's Katherine De Vaucelles, lady-in-waiting to a queen, might be any modern girl who found love and will make any sacrifice to keep it.

It is one of the world's deathless love stories—that of Villon and the lovely Katherine—and dashing Ronald Colman and beautiful Frances Dee are ideally suited to carrying on the tradition a la celluloid.

• • •

This modernized version of the original play and musical version, "The Vagabond King," introduces the brash Villon and his king, the aging Louis XI, in a noisy, uncouth tavern, where the former tells his ruler what's wrong with his reign.

Soon after, the two meet again, Villon to be sentenced for stirring up opposition against his king and Louis XI to determine Villon's punishment. Villon's charm and ideas win him a seven-day reprieve, an exciting, prideful period during which he reigns as Grand Constable of France.

It is his king's whim that is responsible for his cheating the hangman by rousing the rabble against the reigning classes.

There is a high ardor and gallantry in the role of Villon as Colman plays it, and you are not in the least surprised that the poor and oppressed of Paris follow in his lead.

But it is Basil Rathbone's King Louis XI that is the master portrayal in "If I Were King." In his current Paramount appearance Rathbone steps out of his customary villain role to become a character actor. His doddering wily Louis is one of the finest things this excellent British stage and screen star has ever done. He dominates the screen and is an important factor in giving the picture its 15th century French flavor.

• • •

Frances Dee, as the breath-taking beautiful Katherine, is lovely and tender and desirable. Ellen Drew, as Hugette, the cocotte whose love for Villon is the one fine, unselfish thing about her, is really a revelation and Paramount is already grooming her for important roles.

Mr. Lloyd and his co-producer, Lou Smith, who not so long ago was one of New York's brightest young newspapermen, would be knighted for their current Paramount release if we were king.

World Events On Loew's Bills

First films of the Czech surrender of the Sudetenland and the actual signing of the Big Four Treaty at Munich by Hitler, Chamberlain, Mussolini and Daladier are now being shown at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

Other highlights of the Sudeten "sacrifice" include the striking scenes of the march into Sudetenland by the Nazi legions and the homecoming of French Premier Daladier and Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain.

The sweep of the World Series by the New York Yankees and the surprising upsets scored in the football world round out a most interesting news program.

TREMONT'S FILMS

Tremont's new screen program through Saturday includes "Always Goodbye," with Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall and Ina Hunter and "Divorce of Lady X," starring Merele Oberon.

Pastor on 11th Day of Fast

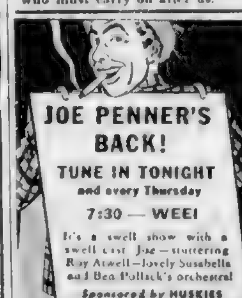

PALMERTON, Pa., Oct. 13 (AP)—The Rev. Lazar Kirichenkoff, starting the 11th day of a fast he hopes will bring more young people to his church, declared today that "they will return to worship, or they will have an opportunity to attend my funeral."

Visibly weakened, the Rev. Kirichenkoff, pastor of a Greek Orthodox church, has taken only three or four cups of sweetened tea daily since October 2. He has lost 15 pounds, but refuses to discontinue the routine duties at the church.

"I do not mind the fasting," he insisted. "After the third day, I had no desire for food. My body may require sustenance but not my spirit. Death would be a small sacrifice if it were to bring to the church the young people who must carry on after us."

Success—At Last!

By Carl Anderson

Austen Lake:

B. C. Pulls a Movie Finish in the Twilight

THIS MIGHT HAVE BEEN IMAGINED in a Hollywood fiction studio. A movie manuscript writer might have sketched such a football plot to the order of his production manager. You know the style! "Now Mr. Jones, give us something with a gooseflesh finish, something where the hero wins the game in the last eye-wink of play. Hysterical thousands, element of suspense and the big climactic wow."

AUSTEN LAKE

Mr. Jones might have framed his plot thus:

Locus: Fenway Park; 20,000 sweltering people standing on their seats and yammering "Hurry, hurry."

Personnel: Detroit University and Boston College in the deep, autumn gloaming. Score 6 to 6.

Scene: Detroit crouching on its own goal line, and Fella Gintoff, earnest son of ambitious parents, smoothing the dust off his kicking toe as the black finger on the bleacher clock inches slowly and inexorably toward Zero. There are only a few seconds left.

Hurry. Hurry!

"Yeh, Mr. Jones, that's it! Get in a close-up of crowd frenzy [illegible], cuff-chewing stuff. Then one of the electric clock with the second hand [illegible] couple of ticks from the 0. Then back to a shot of Gintoff [illegible] off his toe while the two teams crouch in a teeth-clenched die-for-dear-old-alma pose.

"The kind of stuff that makes the audience say, 'Gosh, will they ever snap that ball. See?'"

That sort of a movie finish. Only this was real, muscle and bones [illegible]

The fact is that Ralph Worth, the B. C. center, did snap the ball—not more than a second or two before the automatic tooter on the top of the clock let go its curfew hoot. And by that time Fella Gintoff's toe, the same boot-tip which had failed to convert a precious point which would have given B. C. a 7-6 lead earlier in the quarter, clicked against the leather. This time the ball sailed straight and true.

* * *

The Impossible Happened

THE GAME WAS OVER AS IT SAILED, and the delirious thousands tumbled down from the slopes, scaling hats and swirling around the sweat-stained kids like they had just won a war single handed.

The fat was snatched from the fire and, instead of an inglorious tie in a previously boresome ball game, B. C. had created something epic in the memory of the many. This one would be talked about over many an alumni beer and biscuit.

But there was more to the grand blowoff than that.

Two minutes before [illegible] kick the ball had rested on B. C.'s 24-yard mark, too deep for danger, too far for hope. Yet the impossible happened. [illegible] from punt formation, caught Detroit defenses [illegible] and [illegible] a pass into the hands of Vito Ananis. The bulky halfback was off [illegible] collecting a screen of interferers as he [illegible] Detroit's 32. Still it seemed nothing more than a last [illegible] of a dying hope.

[illegible] yards was an impassable continent with that moving finger [illegible] round its last orbit.

[illegible] for one maybe two last desperate flings . . . what—O! Dick Harrison, the lanky end, snagged one from a forest of Detroit arms, a baseball throw taken at the spot of the Fenway diamond where Pinky Higgins of the Red Sox does his summer work. Harrison stumbled as he caught it, falling hard. But he clung to the ball on Detroit's 7. In two last gasp plays B. C. had covered more territory than in 58 minutes of [illegible] back-bending effort.

The rest is history.

* * *

Something for Gil to Remember

GILMOUR DOBIE, THE SAD SAGE, must have wreathed his features in a glorious grin last evening. His boys and done it the hard way, spotting Detroit an inexcusable touchdown on a 55-yard, prayerful pass in the second period and committing thereafter the full gamut of fumbles, missed blocks, dropped passes and interceptions. For the first 50 minutes of play what luck they had was all bad.

Even when the peppery little Negro halfback, Lou Montgomery, came into the game after a prolonged demand by the B. C. cheering section, and helped Pete Cignetti and Charley O'Rourke work the ball to Detroit's 17, there was no prospect of hitting the jackpot.

B. C. had been there before.

And the outlook dulled further when Charles E. "Gus" Dorais, Detroit's coach and athletic director, shooed his whole first team, in one eleven-man hunk, onto the field to stem the tide.

ARMY WHIRLWIND

Harvard Grabs Twister in Cadets

By WILL CONNELL

Power and precision, packed into one quartet, roll back of a fast tough line for Army against Harvard in the Stadium on Saturday.

A veteran backfield carrying a deadly scoring punch gives the Crimson something to worry about.

Wilson Long Frontczak Schwenk Little

Eyeing Harvard Five Army veterans, backbone of the powerful Cadet eleven, talk things over at West Point during final workout for Crimson, their foe in Stadium Saturday. Left to right, backs Woody Wilson, "Huey" Long, Art Frontczak and Capt. Jim Schwenk, and guard Bob Little plan to repeat their last year's win over Harvard.

Capt. Jim Schwenk, quarter; Woody Wilson and Art Frontczak, halfbacks, and Huey Long at full, group as the No. 1 backfield. Every one was a regular last year.

Wilson is lightest at 175 pounds. Schwenk and Frontczak weigh 185. Long is a shade above 180 and if there is anything the four can't throw at you in the line of attack Columbia doesn't know what it is.

The Lions edged Army 20-18 last Saturday in the Cadets' first test after two soft warmup games. But the defeat cost Army nothing at all in prestige and offered sorry comfort to Harvard.

SCHWENK SPINNING

Because Army, after that beating, will be strong medicine for its future foes. With Cadet defense tightened, Harvard must be at its peak to score, while the Crimson scarcely can bottle up the enemy's offense.

Schwenk, durable 60-minute performer, who last year was a fine bucking back, has learned to spin, and adds much to the Army deception. The Cadets are using a single wing, with Wilson and Long sharing wing and tailback jobs, according to which side the backs line up.

Frontczak is [illegible] blocker. Long is a left handed passer and this extra threat gives the unit about all it needs.

YEAGER IDEAL TARGET

In the Army line veterans Riggs Sullivan, 180, right end, and Robert "Little Jack" Little, 175, guard, have new sidekicks who form a line better than last year's.

Fred "Rubberlegs" Yeager at left end is a 190-pound, 6-3 basketball

The Gamble That Won

Gintoff Risks Censure, Emerges as Eagle Hero

By L. B. "PAT" HANLEY

Head Coach at Boston University

One play turned the tide and changed the entire complexion of the Boston College-Detroit game which allowed an apparently tied Eagle team to come roaring home a winner.

This one play hinged on a terrific gamble. Boston College took it and won—Detroit refused it and lost.

This all important play came in the last three minutes of the game with the Eagles back on their own 30 yard line. It was third and eight. Fella Gintoff went into a kick formation and evidently saw the safety man go deep.

He checked signals and called for a daring pass which, if intercepted, probably meant the loss of the game when a tie was certain.

It was particularly courageous on the part of Gintoff as he was calling the plays and while this lad is a great runing back and an outstanding kicker, he is only a fair passer and by his actions he left himself open to criticism if he failed.

DETROIT'S FATAL MISTAKE

The Detroit safety man refused to gamble and thereby made a mistake. He left the center uncovered by going deep. This was unnecessary as there was only a few minutes left to play, and even if Gintoff did kick, his play would have been to let the ball land and roll.

Gintoff passed successfully to Vito Ananis, and the latter traveled to the Detroit 35. This was all that was needed. Fella tried the air again and this time Harrison came booming over the middle and made one of the greatest catches I have ever seen.

With the ball on the four-yard line and the seconds ticking away Gintoff went back for a placement and just as he booted, the game ended but the attempt was successful.

If, however, the Detroit safety had gambled and had been in closer, the chances are better than even that the pass would never have been completed and Boston College might not have won, 9 to 6.

It would have been little short of criminal to take the game away from the Eagles as they were the best team on the field.

Detroit scored in the first period when Palumbo uncorked a 58-yard pass to Halpin who was covered but who just lunged to make a great catch. Then with the ball on the 12 yard line Palumbo faked a reverse and on a half spinner went right through the middle to score easily.

EAGLES CHANGE TACTICS

Here the Titans made a mistake and tried to protect a six-point lead. The visitors who were operating the Notre Dame shift from a short kick formation and who looked very impressive then went into defensive play trying to hang on, which is little short of suicide these days.

Gil Dobie instantly saw this and soon his sparkplug, Charley O'Rourke, into action and the Maiden boy was really terrific. He seemed to lift the entire club and from then on there was no stopping the Eables.

The Eagles went into a power offense in the second half and the Titans attempting to stop the assault, gave up their five man line and used a conventional 6-2-2-1. But it was all in vain. The Eagles finally started to roll at mid-field and employing nothing but a power attack they marched to the 12-yard line. Here Cignetti on a full spinner went right around inside tackle and waded through the middle to score.

Power was not all Boston College had. Even after Charley O'Rourke, their ace passer went out, the Eagles gave up sane football and started to gamble with an air attack that paid off in victory.

Any club that can mix sane conservative, fundamental football with a good gambling attack via the air route must be respected.

Thus a game that started with the ball in the air and ended the same way was won by a club that had everything.

PRAISES DOBIE

After the game Gus Dorais shook Gil Dobie's hand and said:

"If it had to be done, I'm glad it was achieved by one of the old guard."

That may be, but Gus will be a long time in remembering a game he lost by a split second and by a team supposedly conservative which gambled when least expected.

NO. 1. The man of the hour is Fella Gintoff, the kid who calmly booted a field goal with but second remaining to play to beat Detroit at Fenway Park.

Blaik Warns Squad

By BILL GRIMES

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 13—Since his Indians returned from Princeton, Earl Blaik has been telling them at frequent intervals that the Tigers were kittens compared to what they will encounter on Saturday when Tuss McLaughry turns his Brown Bears loose on Memorial Field here.

"Skip those three overwhelming victories that Dartmouth scored over Brown since you seniors entered college," advised Blaik.

"Don't for one moment overlook the fact that since Merrill Davis' eleven swamped them a year ago, the Brunonians have beaten Columbia, Rutgers, Harvard and Lafayette and lost only to Holy Cross and that margin of defeat was one touchdown.

BEST BROWN CLUB

"You'll discover, possibly to your sorrow, that Brown is really tough. You've seen our scouts' reports on the McLaughry squad.

"They weren't "doctored" and every statement in those reports are absolutely true. And, it will be well for you to bear in mind that, although they are reputed to be a fine passing team, the Bruins have surprised their opponents by their smooth and powerful running attack, which has clicked so successfully that they have been obliged to show but very little of their overhead game."

Coach Blaik isn't kidding when he stressed the fact that Brown is represented by the best club it has had in more than a decade.

According to reports from Providence, Captain Larry Atwell is back with the squad which in itself should be a warning to Green gridders.

The Indians have been driven at top speed all week. The first varsity was rested up on Monday, but since then has seen plenty of action.

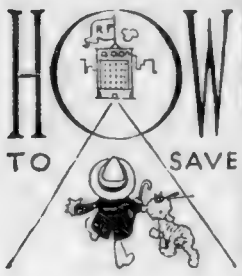

TRAVEL BY BUS

Due to the poor railroad accommodations the Brown squad will make the trip to Hanover by bus. The Brunonians are scheduled to leave Providence tomorrow morning for Newport, N. H., where they will stay overnight with Mein Host Bobby Gault.

Coach McLaughry will have his charges practice on the Richards high school field tomorrow afternoon and the squad will not arrive in Hanover until about 1 o'clock Saturday.

"LISA VALE"

Dartmouth Eleven Like the Yanks | "Big Green" Is Lauded by Thorp

By JACK CONWAY

TOM THORP TOLD me that in his opinion the football team which defeats Dartmouth will be entitled to set itself up as the college champion.

Mr Boston

"I was one of the officials in the Dartmouth Princeton game last Saturday," said Tom, "and the 'Big Green' team certainly made a wonderful showing. It occupies the same place in football that the Yankees do in baseball. Dartmouth has so many great stars that if one of them fails to come through another one makes a spectacular play.

"The Dartmouth backfield is one of the best I have ever seen. Bob McLeod, of course, is All-America, while Hutchinson and the other Dartmouth backs are also brilliant.

"The Dartmouth-Brown game at Hanover, N. H., on Saturday should be worth watching. Brown also has a powerful team. If the game were played at Fenway Park instead of at Hanover, N. H., it would draw 30,000 to 35,000 people."

Tom will officiate in the Fordham-Purdue game on Saturday. When Thorp came to New England to act as a racing steward, it was with the understanding that he would be permitted to keep his engagements as a football official. Thorp gets intense personal enjoyment from the gridiron sport.

Tom's high standing as a college official has been helpful to racing. With Thorp in the stewards' stand race goers know that everything is being conducted on as high a plane as it is at an Army-Harvard or Dartmouth-Brown football classic.

Hambone Kelley Asks a Question

BENNY DROHAN of the South Boston Drohans received a telephone call the other morning at 2 a. m.

"Did I wake you up, Benny?" demanded the voice over the telephone. "This is Hambone Kelley. Somebody just called me a philanthropist and I wanted to find out if I have been insulted."

"That means you are a good fellow," replied Benny. "Go buy the man some milk."

I was [illegible] to hear Hambone was still as carefree and happy as ever. As a fighter Hambone could knock over buildings with his [illegible].

When [illegible] was world light heavyweight champion Hambone dropped him to the canvas during a bout at Braves Field.

"It was the hardest punch I was ever hit during my ring career," Berlenbach later told me.

While a southpaw, Kelley did some of his best thumping with his right hand. While the opposition was watching Hambone's left he would knock it kicking with a right hook that didn't travel more than four or five inches.

Johnny McGrath at one time managed Hambone and Jim Maloney. You would always find Hambone around Maloney's camp as he was able to keep Shamus in a happy mood. One couldn't get too serious when in Hambone's presence.

Random Shots at Target

GIL DOBIE WAS one of the happiest persons in Fenway Park when Boston College put on its story book finish to beat the University of Detroit by a score of 9 to 6 . . . Dobie opened his attack wide and the crowd liked this style of play better than the old rushing game such as Boston College used against Temple a year ago.

Now if Dick Harlow can release a winning Harvard attack against the Army, local football enthusiasm will continue to increase . . . Harvard showed plenty of power against Cornell even though it was beaten by three touchdowns . . . Each of the Cornell touchdowns were the result of long runs . . . Other than on the three occasions when Cornell players got loose, Harvard held its own with the Ithacans . . . The fact Army will enter Saturday's game a favorite will give more glory to Harvard if it is able to come through with a victory.

Larry Bolvin, Hearst All-America 112-pound champion in both the New England and All-Eastern finals a year ago, looks even better boxing at 118 pounds . . . Bolvin is among the youngsters competing in the Irish-American A. A. golden glove show at the Arena . . . Bolvin will be among the boxers who will compete in the Hearst All-America tourney which opens at the Arena on November 7 . . . George Freeman and Tom Kanaly inform me there is a great deal of new talent this year which assures the highest type of competition in the Hearst All America shows.

Gene Sarazen in Error

Sam Snead Made Fortune on Links

Although Fella Gintoff is rightly entitled to the top billing after his sensational playing of the last minute and a half of yesterdays Boston College-Detroit game, Charlie O'Rourke and Lou Montgomery, a couple of sophomores, who were told last fall "to go home and grow up" sparked the Eagles to their great victory . . . Sam Snead, the long hitter from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., has made more than $34,000 this year in golf . . . Didn't Gene Sarazen state in a magazine article that there is no money in the royal and ancient game for the pros" . . . Snead, who was unknown two years ago, has made more this season than Joe DiMaggio . . . Tom Kenny missed the B. C.-Detroit game . . . And, the scribes missed Tom Kenny . . . Horton Smith and his bride have sailed for a short European trip . . . They'll be back in time for Horton to compete at White Sulphur . . . Incidentally, Smith will again make the winter circuit . . . Up to the present, Providence and Springfield owners have displayed very little interest in the coming hockey season . . . Some startling news may break this week-end concerning the future of the Rhode Island Reds and the Indians . . . Leo Durocher has been named manager of the Dodgers for next season . . . But did you notice that Charlie Dressen, a very close pal of Larry McPhail's was appointed one of the coaches . . . Watch your step and your lip, Lippy . . . Bill Stewart will leave for the Chicago Black Hawks' training camp at Urbana, Ill., one week from tomorrow . . . At the South Shore Country Club yesterday, Fred Hannon and Frank Sheedy put together a better ball of 60 . . . Sheehy was out in 31 on his own ball and Hannon holed out every shot for a 31 for the in-nine . . . All baseball men who have seen him declare that Eddie Miller, the shortstop the Bees bought from Kansas City, is another Glenn Wright . . . You'll go to many football games before you see a better kicking duel than that Charlie O'Rourke and Ed Palumbo staged yesterday at Fenway Park . . . And they also did some very fancy passing . . . Sam Byrd, who played in both the American and National Leagues, believes that many of the sore arms pitchers have suffered result from playing golf.

On the end-around play the ball is passed to the left halfback, who takes one step forward and fakes the ball to the fullback and right half coming back to the left side. BIGGIE'S COMING!

All Wisconsin Girds for Pitt's Goldberg

MARSHALL GOLDBERG

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 13 (INS)—This town, capital of the sovereign domain and seat of the University of Wisconsin, is in a fair state of alarm. There are extra gendarmes on every corner, strangers are viewed with suspicion and children are close herded. "Biggie" is coming!

"Biggie" is Marshall Goldberg, leader of the most audacious football bandits since Rockne's last raiders stormed their way from New York to California.

Goldberg and his University of Pittsburgh pals invade Wisconsin tomorrow to play Harry Stuhlderher's Cardinal troops Saturday.

The general learned his military tactics from Knute Rockne and has been building a defense he hopes will make the Maginot line seem like so much tissue paper.

Jock Sutherland is confident his Panthers will take Camp Randall by storm, for the tall Scot will be satisfied with nothing save a national football title and without any plebiscite.

Pittsburgh has one of the greatest backfields of all time. The combination of John Chickerneo, 205, Dick Cassiano, 175, Harold Stebbins, 195, and "Biggie" Goldberg, 195, can do everything: run, drive, sweep, block and pass.

The Panther backs have yet to meet a real test. Consequently they come up to the Wisconsin game in grand physical condition and eager for a battle that will keep them on the field for most of sixty minutes.

All of Madison and a good portion of the state will be inside the Camp Randall walls, Saturday, for in the stands the citizens will be safe from "Biggie" Goldberg and his gang.

Even the governor can't get you tickets, so don't ask.

"Biggie's" coming!

Atwell Returns To Bruin Squad

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 13 (AP)—Brown's football stock, almost on the eve of the Dartmouth game, took a decided upturn with the return of Captain Larry Atwell to the contact squad. The Bruins captain engaged in a spirited scrimmage session and showed no trace of the knee injury that has kept him out of contact work for ten days.

Word in the Bruin camp is to the effect that Atwell likely will be a backfield starter along with John McLaughry, Irving "Shine" Hall and John O'Leary when the Bears move in against the Indians at Hanover.

Barred!

FORT MADISON, Ia., Oct. 13 (INS)—A scheduled football game Saturday between Burlington Junior College and the undefeated state penitentiary convict Bulldogs has been called off, Warden Glenn Haynes said today.

"I called off the game because I can't let the team play outside the walls," the warden said. "The game was scheduled on the Fort Madison high school field."

Big Entry List For 'Pure' Show

There has been a rush of entries for the third of the Irish-American A. A.'s golden glove tryouts which will be held at the Arena on next Monday night.

There will be bouts at 112, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and in the heavyweight class for the experienced boxers, while the 147 and 160-pound divisions will be for novices.

The list of entries for Monday night include Russell Sherry, Taunton; Jimmy Esposito, Brookline; George Ferdinand, Jamaica Plain; R. DeSimone, Dorchester; Joe Blackman, Taunton; Jackie Snadrand, Newport, R. I.; Orlando Cieffi, East Boston; Tony Taranto, Medford; Mal Smallwood, Boston, and Armand Romillard, Saundersville.

The Irish American A. A. will devote special attention to novices as part of its plan to develop new talent.

No Rest for Weary; B. C. Drills Today

It was drill, drill for the victorious Boston College football squad this afternoon at the Heights.

With the Temple game at Philadelphia a week from tomorrow night as the next step, Gil Dobie had his tea mooosening up after the rugged Detroit battle at Fenway.

"No injuries," was the cheering word from B. C. authorities today, indicating that Dobie will have full strength to throw against Pop Warner's Owls, under the lights.

WILLIAMS, BEAKS TIE

dary in close and reversing his field to cross the last line standing up. It was not an individual effort. The B. C. line, which had flunked its blocking assignments earlier in the afternoon, had suddenly begun to blow down tacklers as the recent tempest blew down trees.

So the game was tied.

Now to win it.

* * *

ON THE B. C. BENCH GIL'S GAUNT figure rose and motioned to a hooded figure, a blond boy with a blocky frame. The lad darted toward the goal posts as the amplifier horns announced "Fella Gintoff substituting for O'Rourke."

It was a delicate task for one boy, with the game hinging on the steadiness of his nerve, the arc of his leg and a single, quick stab of his toe.

The try failed, partly because Fella kicked from a too shallow position, hardly more than ten yards behind his line and partly because B. C.'s line failed to hold.

The kick was blocked. And just as well for the drama that followed and for Gintoff's larger role, that it did fail. For had he kicked that goal, there wouldn't have been any breathtaking finale or hysterical twitter by the crowd in the gloaming.

For the sake of dramatics, it was better that way.

Wilson Tops 'Rock' Handicappers

Has 69 Winners, 9 More Than Nearest Rival; 337 Horses in Money

DAVE WILSON is today entrenched at Narragansett Park after leading all handicappers at the Rockingham Park meeting that closed on Columbus Day. Wilson had 63 winners and 337 horses in the money during the meeting at the Salem, N. H. track.

Wilson had nine more winners than his nearest rival.

"Win With Wilson!" continues to be the slogan with the smart horse players.

Wilson also led all other handicappers at the first Rockingham Park meeting as well as at the Suffolk Downs and Summer Narragansett Park meeting.

Wilson has proved the most consistent race track handicapper in the United States. Year after year he leads all handicappers at New England tracks, and then continues his remarkable record when the thoroughbreds move South to Maryland and then to Florida.

DAVE WILSON

Wilson's graded handicaps on the Narragansett Park meeting will appear exclusively in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Dave is at the track each morning clocking the horses himself, and getting the latest information from owners, trainers and jockeys. When Wilson places a horse on top, it is only after the most careful study of the figures and after receiving the last minute information on all conditions concerning a race.

Win With Wilson!

Star Navy Tackle Out Of Eli Game

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 13 (AP)—Navy's football stock tumbled sharply today with the announcement that Big Al Bergner, tackle, kick-off man and defensive stalwart, would be left here because of an injured knee when the Middies entrain for New Haven tonight to meet Yale Saturday.

Al Bergner

Bergner injured his right knee in scrimmage yesterday and was unable to walk today.

Also remaining behind will be two reserve guards, Dave Moore, who has a shoulder injury, and Lyman Rhodes, who twisted a leg in scrimmage.

Head Coach Harry J. (Hank) Hardwick said reports on the ankle injury of Emmet Wood, star halfback, were not encouraging. Wood has not practiced this week, but will make the trip to New Haven.

Yale Fullback In Hospital

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 13 (AP)—Anthony Mott, 23, of Branford, Conn., fullback on the Yale football squad, was disclosed as a patient at New Haven Hospital where attendants said he was suffering from a broken ankle.

The accident occurred last Tuesday while Mott practiced with the other members of the varsity squad. Mott, a junior, is playing his second year with the Blues.

Columbia Prepares For Colgate Passes

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—Expecting Colgate to resort to an air attack, Columbia worked on a defense today after reserves using Colgate plays were checked by the regulars.

With his men in good shape, Coach Lou Little is confident the Red Raiders will be repulsed Saturday.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 13 (INS)—A lengthy scrimmage with emphasis on a defense for Columbia's passing game was Coach Andy Kerr's schedule laid down today for his Colgate gridders.

Poor 'Lippy'

Dodger Pilot Licked From Start

LARRY McPHAIL LEO DUROCHER

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (INS)—His full name is Leo Ernest Durocher, but that doesn't mean anything after all, for "Lippy," which is the handle they know him by throughout the major leagues, is more descriptive of the man who today manages the Brooklyn Dodgers and who is promising a "fighting, scrapping, hustling baseball club."

He was appointed successor to Burleigh Grimes on a one-year contract, and the truth of it all is that the Dodgers probably will finish sixth, or seventh, or eighth again as they have been doing for years, despite Lippy's promise—unless they give him some ball players.

NEEDS NEW CLUB

They may get around to that, in which case the Dodgers actually may begin to make some sense, if Durocher is of major league managerial calibre.

They have given him plenty of baseball brains as assistants to manage what little they've got over there.

His board of strategy will consist of Charlie Dressen, once pilot of the Cincinnati Reds and currently a habitue of Nashville as manager of the Southern Association Vols, and Bill Killifer, who did time as manager of the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Browns at odd times.

Thus ably assisted, all Durocher, erstwhile New York Yankee, Red and St. Louis Cardinal, needs now is something to manage besides the menagerie for which he played shortstop and acted as field captain last season.

Specifically, he needs at least two pitchers, one outfielder who swings from the left side of the plate, a catcher who can catch and an infielder, the latter to be, preferably, a second baseman.

Outside of those few trivial things, Durocher is all set to try for the National League pennant.

COACHES WANTED JOB

Whether Dressen and Killifer will be a help or a hindrance as his coaches likewise is problematical, inasmuch as they, too, wanted the job as manager.

With their managerial experience and unrequited desires in the Brooklyn situation they may find it very tough getting along with Durocher.

Perhaps I'm unduly alarmed, for things couldn't be much worse in Brooklyn from strictly a baseball standpoint no matter what happened.

U. S. Horse Wins British Race

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 13 (AP)—William Woodward's American-owned Foxbrough II., a full brother of Gallant Fox, today won the Middle Park Stakes, a leading event for two-year-olds at six furlongs.

Starting at 13 to 8, he defeated the Earl of Rosebery's Blue Peter by a length and a half, with Rogerstone Castle third by another three lengths. Ten started.

Frenchy Bordagary Released by Cards

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13 (INS)—Stanley "Frenchy" Bordagaray, reserve outfielder, has been released outright by the Cardinals to Rochester of the International League, the Cards announced today.

Bordagaray, a right hander, hit .282 in 81 games for the Redbirds the past season. The Cards bought him from Brooklyn at the end of the 1936 season.
